MORROW MAY SOLVE ISSUES WITH MEXICO

Coolidge Decides Man of His Type Needed Rather Than Old Diplomat

FIT TO MEET PROBLEMS

Borah Says Morrow Can Do Great Good if He Goes With Olive Branch

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Coolidge's appointment of Dwight Morrow to be the American ambassador to Mexico is an event not devoid of profound political importance inside the United States, but of world wide significance.

It means that Mr. Coolidge, fortified by an independent attitude toward political criticism, weighed the advantages of placing a man like Mr. Morrow on the American embassy at Mexico City against the disadvantages and decided that if in the long run the appointment meant the ironing out of the principal difficulties between the United States and Mexico it was worth doing.

Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, feels that if Mr. Morrow goes with the olive branch of peace rather than any imperialistic policy to follow out there is an opportunity for Mr. Morrow to do an incalculable service.

POINTS OF DISPUTE

The pros and cons in appointing Mr. Morrow were briefly these: He has been a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Co., which institution is feeling for all the European bondholders who have Mexican government securities and the criticism would be that Mr. Morrow was acting for them. To offset this is the fact that Mr. Morrow returns absolutely from all business connections and also the fact that in entire sympathy with the viewpoint of the bondholders and Mr. Morrow would merely be following out the wishes of the Department, which has been trying to intercede in behalf of a readjustment of Mexican finances for some time.

Secondly it would be argued that Mr. Coolidge is listening to the banking interests dealing with Mexico. It so happens however, that Mexican finances need reorganization, that revenues from oil properties have dropped off because of the controversy over drilling and the Mexican's future depends on her ability to get a loan. Mr. Morrow has the chance not only to advise Mexico but to tell the bankers definitely about Mexico's capacity to pay. He may be able to render a service to Mexico that no other ambassador could.

MANY ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

Mr. Coolidge might have named a diplomat of the foreign service but the problem was so largely commercial and economic that he prevailed on a man in whom he had personal confidence and who had the necessary knowledge of finances. Mr. Coolidge has implicit faith in his friend, he knows that the American's experience in business connections will act for the American government's best interests at all times. And Mr. Morrow is the type who as chairman of the aircraft investigating board showed how completely absorbed he could be in public service.

Years ago the fact that a man had financial connections would have prevented confirmation by the senate. But the senate confirmed the appointment of Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury, reported to be one of the three or four richest men in America.

The problems between the United States and Mexico are economic, legal and financial. Mr. Morrow is a lawyer, has banking experience and relations with foreign governments has given him a background of knowledge about foreign affairs which will be helpful to him in his new work. Mr. Coolidge has been trying to get a big man to go to Mexico. He found that when he got Henry Stimson, former secretary of war to Nicaragua, he got quick results. So he decided to send Mr. Morrow to Mexico giving him a recess appointment as ambassador and by the time he is established in Mexico City and has gotten his work well along the senate will confirm Mr. Morrow as a matter of record.

HEROIC NUN AND 19 CHILDREN KILLED AS MISSION IS BURNED

Prince Albert, Sask. — (P)—A tale of tragedy and heroism in the isolated Lac la Plonge region of north Saskatchewan was unfolding Thursday as meager details were received of a fire which swept Beauvale Catholic mission, taking the lives of Sister Lea and 19 children.

The sister, one of eight of the grey nuns serving at the mission, was reported to have given her life in a desperate effort to save the children, all of whom are thought to have been Indians.

Fragmentary advice indicated the fire started at midnight in the boy's dormitory and spread rapidly through the dry frame structure. Forty-six children made their way to safety and huddled in horror within the circle of light as screams told of the fate of those trapped inside.

Nothing could be done to help, and the building was soon a mass of smoking ruins.

Campbell Refuses Post On State G. O. P. Board

Oshkosh — (P)—William J. Campbell, Oshkosh lumberman and father of the so-called Oshkosh Republican conference Thursday declined to serve on the committee of 11 appointed to arrange a state convention for nomination of candidates for delegates to the national Republican presidential convention. Mr. Campbell was named Wednesday by Mayor William H. Armstrong of Racine, as a member of the committee.

In a letter to Mayor Armstrong, made public here Thursday, Mr. Campbell explains his declination being due to the fact that "there are certain newspapers and elements in the state that have criticized what they choose to call the 'Oshkosh movement,' and for this reason it would be better to put some one in my place."

A suggestion that Mr. Campbell resign from the committee was made Wednesday by Walter B. Heinemann of Wausau, one of the leaders of the Coolidge-Lenroot faction that has refused to join the new movement, launched at Wausau, when Armstrong was empowered to designate the committee to arrange the state convention.

Anticipating that some incorrect inference might be drawn, Mr. Campbell made clear that his decision to withdraw was not prompted by the

ZONING LAW RAPPED AT COUNCIL MEETING

Mayor Leads Attack on Ordinance Restricting Business Districts

Plans for a city beautiful had a head-on collision with the full dinner pail at the common council meeting Wednesday night and when the meeting was adjourned the dinner pail and other earthly things were conceded victory.

That part of the zoning ordinance which limits business districts was bitterly assailed by Mayor A. C. Rule and Alderman Mark Catlin.

"The city planner undoubtedly was skilled in his line," Alderman Catlin explained to other members of the council. "The plan was to make the city more beautiful. That is all right. But I doubt if the city has the power to forbid a man the means of making a livelihood, as this ordinance seems to do."

SLEUTHS SNIFF THROUGH CHICAGO TO FIND BOOZE

Chicago — (P)—Three hundred federal prohibition agents scoured the city and made frequent arrests and raids in efforts to make the Dempsey-Tunney fight crowd an arid gathering. As a result, two truckloads of beer and alcohol as well as smaller quantities, will flow down the city sewer.

Chicago — (P)—Like pages from the social register reads the list of women who traveled by motor, by special car and even by airplane to see Gene Tunney defend his title from Jack Dempsey at Soldier Field Thursday night. Royalty is to be represented by the Princess Xenia of Russia and Greece, whose airplane was one of a score that started from the east for Chicago. There is a seat at the ringside, too, for the Marquise de la Falaise, whom the customers at the cinema place know much better by the name of Gloria Swanson. The arrival of "Duke" Schiller and Edward Bohn in their Royal Windsor and Edith Gibson and Fred Koehler with their Detroit, the non-stop race from New York, was scheduled as the feature of the air meet program Thursday.

BEGIN NON-STOP RACE

New York — (P)—Four men in two huge monoplanes Thursday presumably were speeding westward over a new non-stop transcontinental air trail, with fame, a share in $15,000 in prize money, and Spokane, as their goal.

Their course lay over a 2,300 mile bee line from Roosevelt field, New York, where they took off Wednesday in the last and most exciting of the Spokane air derby races.

If the airmen were on schedule they spanned the eastern states Wednesday and Wednesday night over the midwest during the night and headed for the vast Rocky mountain territory.

Everyone Invited To Hear Report Of Chicago Battle

While thousands upon thousands of men and women are pouring into Chicago this afternoon to witness the great spectacle staged by Tex Rickard to determine the "boxing championship of the world" a broadcasting station is being installed in the Post-Crescent building to give Appleton fight fans as complete a record of what is going on in the ring as will be obtained by any of the thousands in the Chicago stadium, excepting only those in the most advantageous seats.

Every move by Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, the principals in the big spectacle, will be quickly and accurately given to the thousands of fans gathered in S. Appleton's near the Post-bldg from which the fight reports will be broadcast.

In addition there will be a running description of the crowd and the stadium as given by trained observers, something which even the ringriders will miss.

GET TWO REPORTS

Reports of the fight will be received direct from the ringside by radio and by the Associated Press wire, thus assuring fans here the most complete and positive report that it is possible to obtain.

Either report or both of them will be re-broadcast to the fans gathered here through elaborate equipment furnished by the Irving Zuelke Music Co. A Radiola 104 speaker, the largest and most powerful tone amplifier in commercial use, will carry the story of the fight, the very fringes of the huge crowd that is expected to gather around the Post-Crescent building. The volume of this apparatus is much greater than anything heretofore used for broadcasting athletic events in Appleton and it will be possible to hear every word of the description of the fight at least a block away. A Radiola specially equipped will be used to intercept the radio signals and a complete broadcasting station will send the words hurrying into the air.

Broadcasting will start between 6:30 and 7 o'clock so that the fans gathered at that time will get a running story of the preliminaries and of the crowd. The main battle is scheduled to start between 8:30 and 9 o'clock unless threatening weather conditions make it advisable to start earlier.

Immediately after the fight an extra will be issued by The Post-Crescent to carry the story of the fight. This paper should be on the street fifteen or twenty minutes after the last bell is struck.

S. Appleton, between W. College and W. Lawrence streets, will be closed to traffic after 5 o'clock tonight and motorists will be asked to take their cars off that street so that there will be room for the crowd that wishes to hear the fight report.

MAN, WIFE SENTENCED FOR LA CROSSE HOLDUP

Couple Is Taken to Waupun to Serve from 3 to 15 Years in State Prison

La Crosse — (P)—Robert Holt and his wife, Thorne, were found guilty of robbing a gasoline service station here on the night of July 9, late Wednesday afternoon and sentenced to three to fifteen years in state prison. Holt, who had protested his innocence until the last day of the trial, broke down during his testimony Wednesday and admitted the holdup, but insisted his wife had no part in the robbery.

Both defendants were guilty of the charge of robbery at the point of a gun, according to the verdict by the jury. Holt was sentenced to three to fifteen years in state prison. Thorne was sentenced to three to fifteen years in state prison. The couple was taken to Waupun, a heavy guard of armed deputies, under the direction of Sheriff Walter Rice, accompanied the prisoners to the penitentiary.

It was understood that the jurors found it difficult to agree on what verdict to bring in for Mrs. Holt. An anxious crowd kept vigil in the courtroom throughout the evening, expecting the verdict at any moment. Both Mr. and Mrs. Holt, when they entered the courtroom, appeared eager and more serious than they had been at any time during the two day trial. But they sat motionless while the verdicts were read and sentence pronounced.

DUVALL TRIAL MAY GO TO JURY BEFORE NIGHT

Indianapolis, Ind. — (P)—Arguments in which he was pictured by prosecution attorneys as a despoiler of sacred institutions, and by his own counsel as "the protector of taxpayers" were continued Thursday in the trial of Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis, with the prospect that his case would reach the jury before nightfall.

Mayor Duvall is charged with violating the corrupt practices act, an affidavit filed by Marion co. prosecutor, accusing him specifically with having promised William H. Armistage, a local politician, that he might name three members of the city administration in return for $10,000 and support in the 1925 city campaign.

MOTHER AND SON FILE SUITS AGAINST DENTIST

Chicago — (P)—Dr. Garratt Lightbart, wealthy retired dentist of Plymouth, Wis., Wednesday was made defendant in the proceedings of two suits filed by a woman seeking $50,000 damages for breach of promise and her son, seeking $75,000 damages for alienation of his mother's affections.

The woman, Mrs. Lavinia Harkness, charged the doctor had promised to marry and urged her to obtain a divorce, but refused to marry her after she won her decree. The son, Farnard, 22, alleged that his mother's infatuation for the doctor broke up their home and led to her divorce and the alienation of her affections.

TWO BARGES RELEASED AT DUBUQUE HARBOR

Dubuque, Iowa — (P)—The barges, S. S. Thorpe and C. C. Webber, left Dubuque harbor Thursday morning after being tied up here since Sunday, to continue their voyages to the Twin Cities and St. Louis, respectively.

W. C. T. U. SPEAKER ASKS STRICTER ENFORCEMENT

Fond du Lac — (P)—Calling attention to the financial savings credited to the effect of the eighteenth amendment, urging a stricter enforcement to take Wisconsin out of the wet class in prohibition matters, and demanding a concerted effort to increase the usual voting percentage, Mrs. Annie Warren of Stoughton, president of the Wisconsin W. C. T. U., delivered the opening address at the annual convention of organization Thursday afternoon.

Between 150 and 200 delegates had arrived for the meeting up to noon. It was expected that total registration for the convention which continues till Monday, would be in the neighborhood of 500. Business sessions of the state meeting, which is being held at the Division Street M. E. church, will be marked by addresses by a number of noted leaders of the dry cause.

Get Your Man!

Get your man, may be the principal commandment of the modern chorus girl as expounded by a recent motion picture, but it may be applied with equal force to the "help wanted" advertisement of the Post-Crescent.

Mr. Frank M. Gray, Conway hotel, recently advised a "help wanted" ad to "get his man" and in two days he had ten applications—and he got the man he wanted.

NO OPPOSITION IN CHOICE AT PARIS MEETING

Edward E. Spafford Given Greatest Ovation as New Legion Commander

NAME 5 VICE COMMANDERS

Miss Irene McIntyre Walbridge, New Hampshire, Is Auxiliary Head

Paris — (P)—His nomination made, seconded and unanimously confirmed within five minutes, Edward E. Spafford of New York, Thursday took place apart in the election of national commanders of the legion. The New York department of the legion was elected without opposition, a procedure hitherto unknown in elections of the organization of world war soldiers.

Surrounded by the convention, Commander Spafford received an ovation greater than that tendered even such heroes as General Pershing, Marshal Foch, President Doumergue and Premier Poincare.

The last resolution adopted before adjournment was a message of greetings to Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, sick at his Cleveland home. James Ruffin of Washington, Paul R. Younts of North Carolina, Ralph T. O'Neill, of Kansas, Dan Spurlock of Louisiana, and J. M. Henry of Minnesota, were elected vice commanders.

NEW JERSEY MAN CHAPLAIN—Colony Wilson of New Jersey, who fought with the Lafayette flying corps before the United States entered the war and then with the A. E. F., was elected chaplain.

Illinois, it was announced, has been awarded first place in the quarter competition, with Wisconsin second. The legislative committee's report, involving several rather routine resolutions, was adopted.

The aeronautics committee presented a resolution, favoring a separate department of aviation, with a cabinet secretary at its head. The committee stated that the situation now warranted separate aviation department and also proposed that the national guard have the same aviation equipment as the regular army.

MITCHELL MOVES ADOPTION—Former Brigadier General William Mitchell, Milwaukee, chairman of the aviation committee and the center of Wednesday's unsuccessful fight to drop the words "as soon as warranted" moved adoption of the resolution.

Miss Irene McIntyre Walbridge, of Peterboro, N. H., was elected national president of the American Legion auxiliary. Mrs. Bessie Stewart Smith of Chicago, was elected vice president for the central division, filling the place that Mrs. Barcus formerly held.

EXPECT 150,000 AT CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

Gene Rests Before Battle—Jack Is in Exceptionally Good Condition

Chicago — (P)—The moon scene at Soldier field was one of quiet calm, strange contrast to the expected five hours later, the time set for opening the gates to the first corners of the great throng of 150,000 or more anxious to see the return engagement between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey. There was only a sprinkling of humanity on the streets converging on the stadium when it was a small knot of humanity about the field office, asking questions, mostly about how to go about getting better seats.

GENE RESTS FOR BOUT

Lake Villa, Ill. — Camp here for Chicago shortly before noon Thursday with a heavy police escort, to rest in a Chicago hotel until the hour of the fight tonight. Except for eating a steak dinner at 5 o'clock, Gene hoped to spend as much of the afternoon and evening as possible asleep. It was understood he expected to stop in the bungalow on the roof of the Hotel Sherman.

JACK WEIGHS 195 1/2

Chicago — (P)—Jack Dempsey tipped the beam at 195 1/2 pounds Thursday afternoon when he weighed in officially before the state athletic commission. This was nearly four pounds less than the experts figured the ex-champion would scale, and was accepted as an indication of excellent condition.

Dr. Russell declared his thorough examination failed to reveal any signs of high blood pressure such as a New York medical examiner found in Dempsey the day of the Sharkey fight. Dempsey's pulse was 68. The physician declared the ex-champion a "remarkable specimen" in every respect. Dempsey appeared in high spirits. He joked and laughed with photographers before stepping on the scales.

Weighing in an hour after the ex-champion, Gene Tunney balanced the scales at 182 1/2 pounds, three pounds less than Dempsey, but four pounds more than he weighed a year ago when he won the title. The difference in weight was much less than had been anticipated. It was figured Tunney would be close to 185 and Dempsey around 175.

DELAYING OPERATION BOOSTS DEATH RATE

Doctor Says Danger Becomes Greater the Longer Action Is Postponed

Eau Claire—(P)—Dr. Reginald H. Jackson, Madison, in speaking before the meeting of the State Medical Society here Thursday, stressed the need for quick action in operations on abdominal organs.

"While the present mortality in acute surgical conditions of the abdomen is far too high, it is gradually being lowered by the education of physicians and laymen to the great importance of the time element as a factor in this condition.

A feature of the day's meeting were motion pictures showing the passage of food through human intestines, with movements like baseball players running bases. The pictures were presented and explained by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of the Mayo clinic of Rochester.

Dr. C. J. Combs, Oshkosh, in a talk before the society, declared that most criticism of the medical profession comes from its treatment of fractures. He added that his own observations were that the treatment of fractures brings as satisfactory results as treatment for other conditions. Laymen, however, he pointed out, expect perfect functional results in the treatment of any fractures, regardless of any difficulty that may be involved, and as a result, most of the malpractice actions are the result of these cases. Dr. Combs advocated having the doctor tell his patient exactly the

STUDENTS NOT CHARGED FEE BY SCHOOL UNION

Madison—(P)—University of Wisconsin students are not being charged the $10 fee for Memorial Union dues which by vote of the board of regents, was to have gone into effect this fall. University and Memorial union officials said the fee will not be added to the tuition of the students until 1928 because the new union building will probably not be ready for general occupancy until the latter part of this year.

Considerable opposition was expressed to the fee at the time it was authorized. Opposition of students was reflected in the student senate, and a meeting of that body was to have been held as early as possible to protest the levy on the grounds that the senate should have been consulted on such a scheme for supporting the Memorial Union.

"In the last five years," he said, "84 patients suffering from burns have been admitted to Milwaukee Children's Hospital, and of this number, 18 have died; a mortality rate of nearly 22 per cent. This alone should impress the public with the seriousness of burns. In the last few years there has been a renewal of interest on the part of many surgeons in the treatment of burns.

Dr. Gentz Perry, Rhinelander, discussed the use of the X-ray in the study of the internal structures of the body, and the functions of the internal organs. The results of such examinations should be interpreted by physicians especially trained for such work, he said.

NEENAH LIKELY TO HAVE
FINE BASKETBALL QUINT

Neenah—While the football season at high school has just started, the basketball season is being looked forward to as the best one here for several seasons. The Neenah high school team will be practically the same as last year. Edwin Tyrlor, who has entered the University of Wisconsin, and James Hincott are the only men to leave the team. Those remaining are John Scheller, Willie Hase, Mitchell Johnson, Elmer Radke, George Pratt, Karl Gaertner and several new men.

The first football game will be played at a week from Saturday with the St. Peter high school team of Oshkosh, a team which is practically the same as last year and which held the Neenah team to a 7 to 6 score in an exhibition game played at Columbia park. The St. Peter game this year takes the place of the annual Alumni game.

NEENAH WILL HAVE TEAM IN VALLEY HOCKEY LOOP

Neenah—This city will enter a team in the Fox River Valley Hockey league when the loop is formed for the winter, according to the young men who played the game last year and won the championship. Neenah will have about the same lineup as last year.

LISTEN-IN ON RADIO

Neenah—All radios in the city have been tuned in for the Dempsey-Tunney fight, which will start soon after 7 o'clock, standard time. There will be several places about the city where the fight can be heard over the radio. The Irving Zueke Music company will install a loudspeaker in front of its store on Wisconsin-ave. The Quinn brothers will have the same equipment outside their place of business. The firemen will be prepared to entertain about 100 fans at the station where their radio has been put into shape for the receiving of the fight returns and several private radio owners about the city have placed loud speakers on their porches or windows so that the neighbors can receive the reports. The Twin Cities will be well represented at Soldiers' Field Chicago where the fight is to be held.

JAPAN TO ECONOMIZE IN CORONATION COST

Will Spend Several Million
Yen for Ceremonies in

Toyko—(AP)—Preparations are under way for the great coronation ceremony to be held in Kyoto in November of 1928 when Hirohito, the young successor of the late Emperor Taisho, will be formally crowned as the ruler of Japan.

Committees are being appointed to take charge of the event and accountants are figuring out a coronation budget of several million yen which will be presented to the Diet that convenes next spring.

Unlike the coronation ceremonies for Emperor Taisho, no special foreign envoys will come to Japan for the Hirohito accession. The Japanese government has requested the various nations not to send extraordinary representatives, as in the past, and it is expected that the ambassadors and ministers stationed in Tokyo will be delegated to attend in the extraordinary capacity.

The request that special representatives be dispensed with is said to have been due to Japan's wish to economize.

The officials in charge intend to exert every effort to simplify the ceremonies in order that the least possible cost may be incurred. But even with the utmost economy, it is feared that the Hirohito coronation expenses will be greater than those of the Emperor Taisho which were approximately 10,000,000 yen, because general costs have been increased.

A number of special carriages are to be built and blooded horses imported for the occasion. The music to be played during the various ceremonies is to be especially composed by both Japanese and European musicians.

The music to be played at the grand banquet following the coronation will be purely Japanese, the orchestra using flutes, harps, drums, gongs and other native instruments. At a subsequent banquet to be held later in the evening the army and navy bands will play Western music exclusively.

FIGHT FANS HERE WELL DIVIDED OVER OUTCOME OF BOUT

Appleton buzzed with fight news and figures Thursday and the big battle of the year was thoroughly discussed wherever knots of men gathered, on the street corners or in stores, but opinions of the local predictors were widely varied as to the result. At times Gene Tunney, the champion, seemed to have the edge, but there is plenty of enthusiasm for the Manassas Mauler.

Few of Tunney's staunchest supporters hardly expected him to win by a knockout, while Dempsey's friends insisted on a ten-count punch by the former champion in any round from the third to the ninth. Some fans declared that they wanted to see Tunney beat Dempsey yet they thought Jack would win.

"Fixed fight" also was a term used often, many fans declaring that if Dempsey wins it indicates a frameup with a third matching of the pair as the object.

COURT HEARS FIGHT TO BREAK BROTHER'S WILL

Further testimony will be taken by Judge Fred V. Heinemann in county court Friday morning in the effort of Mrs. August Rohm and William Stelzner, Appleton, to break the will of their brother, Louis Stelzner, Kaukauna, by which he left all his property to another brother, Julius Stelzner, Kaukauna. In 1916 Louis made a will in which he bequeathed $100 to Mrs. Rohm and $50 to his brother, William. While the balance went to Julius. In the complaint filed by the brother and sister, they charge that undue influence was brought to bear upon Louis by Julius to make another will shortly before his death, in which all his property was given to Julius. They also allege that the will was not filed according to law and that Louis was of unsound mind when he signed the document. The case was opened last week before Judge Heinemann but was postponed to Friday.

CITY POOR SUPPLIED WITH FUEL AND FOOD

Many calls for aid are being received by the city poor department, according to E. G. Schueler, poor commissioner. The cold wave resulted in many applications for fuel and food.

The increased demands for aid at this time of the year do not speak well for the winter outlook, according to Mr. Schueler. The calls far exceed the number that normal should be expected at this time, inasmuch as the city poor generally are self-supporting during the summer and manage to save something for the winter months. Such does not appear to be the case this year, however, Mr. Schueler said.

NEWSPAPER WAR SCARES

We give below a sample of war scare stuff printed from time to time by that portion of the press committed to the Big Stick, militarism and isolation. If not malicious it is at least dishonest. A prominent headline in the Chicago Tribune reads: "JAPAN RUSHES PLANS FOR WAR IN MANCHURIA. Clash With United States and Russia Near."

The story, of course, does not justify the heading, and yet it does its best to create the impression that a collision between Japan and the United States impends, and that Japan is pursuing a policy and taking measures that make it impossible to avert war. It is written by a special correspondent, whose principal business, whether in Europe or Asia, is to send in news stories calculated to alarm the American people and to show the hopefulness of trying to maintain peace and of working in cooperation with foreign governments.

We have had in American newspapers in recent years a thousand head lines like the one quoted above, many of them streaming across an entire page. Most of them were aimed at Japan, some at Great Britain, and a few at France. There is no more foundation for the inference contained in the Tribune heading than there would be for a statement that we are about to go to war with Sweden. No differences exist today between Japan and the United States which by any stretch of the imagination could lead to armed conflict, least of all Japanese competition with Russia in Manchuria.

The story goes on to tell of enormous quantities of munitions and arms that are being exported to Japanese strongholds on continental Asia and then speaks of an inevitable "clash with the United States." It is the kind of journalism which constantly embarrasses the state department in the development of foreign policy, and which creates unnecessary and prejudiced animosity by the American people toward foreign nations.

The prime interest of the United States in the Orient is to see China nationalized, united and free. It is inconceivable, however, that it would ever go to war with Russia, Japan, Great Britain or anyone else to prevent Chinese exploitation. There are other and even more effective means for preventing this. Moreover, if the people of the United States have any sympathies in Russo-Japanese rivalry they would probably favor the Japanese.

Perhaps the public has learned to take our newspaper war scares for what they are really worth, but whether it has or not, they constitute a policy of deliberate misrepresentation and pernicious propaganda which are no credit to the American press.

THE FEDERAL AID SYSTEM

"Approximately two-thirds of the 200,349 miles of highway on the federal aid system have been improved. According to 1925 figures, the total cost to the federal government to improve one mile of highway averaged $9850. This means that in the fiscal year 1927, 1928 and 1929 an additional 22,500 miles of road should be added to the system. If the states continue to improve roads on the federal aid system at their own expense as they have done in the past, they will, during that period, add another 30,000 miles, so that at the close of 1929 we should have about 50,000 more miles of improved roads. At the most, it should not take more than five years to improve all the roads on the system."

The above statement of the American Automobile Association indicates the extent of federal road progress, connecting road systems within the states to make up a national system.

It was the aim when the revised federal aid highway act became effective five years ago to bring the system to completion in about ten years. If state co-operation continues, the aim will be realized.

POLITICAL STRATEGY

President Coolidge has definitely decided not to call a special session of congress. This was made practically certain when leaders of the party agreed that a special session would do more political harm than good. The question was not, of course, decided with reference to the legislative needs of the country. It was decided with reference to effects upon the presidential campaign next year.

Republicans were afraid to give their opponents too much time to air the Smith-Vare senatorial scandals in Illinois and Pennsylvania. Mr. Hoover has reported that reconstruction in the southern flood district is going on satisfactorily and that control of future floods will be as effectively provided without as with a special session. Senator Curtis blithely assures the president that tax reduction and farm relief will be taken care of with clock-like dispatch, and that all of the other legislative problems before congress will be disposed of in like manner.

What actually happens is of less consequence to the G. O. P. than what may be averted. The party and the administration are on the defensive all along the congressional front. Failure to give agricultural relief, the tariff policy, plans for tax revision and election scandals, are all under assault. It is evidently the theory of Republican politicians that the shorter the time for hostilities the better will be the chances of those who are holding the fort to withstand the attack. It is disappointing to the Democrats, and more particularly to the Progressives who like to be in action all the time, but it has the aspect of being good politics.

PAGING GENIUS

News that the Winifred Sackville Stoners, mother and daughter of prodigious intellects, are to head for the highways and byways of the land on a still hunt for other geniuses presents an interesting possibility.

The greatest criticism of the public school system and all mass education is that the instruction offered has to be aimed at the lowest intellects of the class, while the bright boys and girls who get their lessons in a hurry have to spend too much time loafing and waiting for the dunces to see the point. The Stoners propose to find these bright youngsters and then encourage the well-to-do that they can help the world as a whole in no better way than by backing the hopefuls and seeing that they are trained for bigger and better things.

It is a beautiful idea, and it brushes away all the cobwebs which clutter up the door of opportunity for aspiring youth. The trouble is that genius has a queer way of hiding itself, and failing to answer "Here!" when paged. Real genius, in past history, has preferred finding itself, and the hot house variety of genius usually flops sadly.

NO MOSQUITOES, NO MALARIA

The name "malaria" is an misleading name. "cold." Malaria means literally bad air, but the name was given to the disease before the nature of cause of the disease was known. It "ill misleads a great many people who persist in imagining that malaria is caused by dampness or by some vague miasma that comes out of a swamp or even by night air.

Malaria is never caused by bad drinking water, bad air or bad food. One can get malaria only by being inoculated by a mosquito, and only by a mosquito of the Anopheles genus or variety. There are certain characteristic differences between Anopheles and Culex mosquitoes that every one should know. If only for peace of mind in case of collision with the pests. First, the Culex or non-malaria carrying mosquitoes commonly breed in unsecured cisterns, rain barrels, hoof prints in the ground, old cans or bottles left to hold water about the doorway, obstructed eaves, bird baths, and the like. On the other hand Anopheles or malaria carrying mosquitoes seldom breed close to habitations but prefer ponds or reservoirs or culverts, or sluggish streams or pools in old stone quarries. When a Culex alights on the skin the mosquito's body is parallel with the plane of the skin. When an Anopheles alights the mosquito's body is at an angle with the plane of the skin, as though this more deadly mosquito takes a position calculated to aid her in thrusting her proboscis into a victim's skin. The larvae (wiggle-tails) of the Culex or non-malaria carrying mosquito hang downward on the surface of the water, whereas the Anopheles wiggle-tails rest parallel with the surface. Of course no mosquito can breed except in water. A thin film of oil sprayed on the water kills the wiggle-tails or mosquito larvae by suffocating them, and so rid the vicinity of the pests.

Most cases of chills and fever, particularly in regions where Anopheles mosquitoes do not occur, are incorrectly diagnosed if assumed to be malaria. We need not suggest various conditions which produce chills and fever. But only the finding of the malaria parasites in the red corpuscles of the patient's blood warrants a positive diagnosis of malaria in the place where we know no malaria carrying mosquitoes occur.

In a region where Anopheles mosquitoes occur, a fairly safe diagnosis may be made if the microscopic examination of the blood smear fails to show the malaria parasites, if the physician finds an enlarged spleen and especially when there are other positively diagnosed cases of malaria in the same vicinity.

No good physician ever suspects malaria in the northern states or Canada, unless the patient has visited or resided in a region where the Anopheles mosquito is a recognized habitant. In non-malarial districts a lot of bunk is diagnosed as "malaria."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Consumption Versus Tuberculosis

What is the difference between consumption and tuberculosis? Which is easier to treat? Do patients with T. B. live longer than those who are consumptive? (S. M.)

Answer—In the advanced stage of tuberculosis there is marked loss of weight, wasting of the body, consumption. In olden times they didn't know what ailed the patient until the disease reached this advanced stage and the hectic or septic fever was consuming the body. So they called it consumption. It is the old folk who still hold that view of tuberculosis. It is most difficult to treat patients whose friends take that view, because such patients are not likely to follow the doctor's advice in all matters pertaining to recovery. They are too prone to listen to the well meant but dangerous advice of others.

The Corn Must Have Gone Crazy With the Heat

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

ON—

CROWDED AMERICAN COLLEGES.

Washington, D. C. — Is there too much of the so-called higher education in this country? Offhand the answer to that question is that there cannot be too much education, however or wherever it is called, in any country. Educators who are charged with the responsibility of conducting the colleges and universities of the United States say, however, that it is not a question that can be answered offhand.

To state the question more explicitly it is, are too many young men and women in this country seeking higher education, or going to colleges and universities whether or not they are really seeking education?

From more than one college president a vigorous affirmative comes in answer. They say that there are far too many students who are not worth the expenditure of effort and money required to give them a chance at a college education. When they relax from their scholastic dignity under the assurance that they will not be quoted personally they say that the hells of learning in the United States are cluttered up with a lot of youths of both sexes who have no business there, and that everybody concerned would be better off if they were not there.

By this they mean that our colleges and universities are overcrowded to a serious degree and that far too many young men and women who do not expect or who can not hope to complete a college course are contributing to this over-crowded condition. They advocate more rigid entrance examinations and more effective measures of eliminating students who, even after they pass entrance tests, demonstrate that they really are not worth while college material. They want to get rid of three classes of students — those who don't care whether or not they get through, those who try to slide through, and those who are not qualified to get through no matter how hard they apply themselves.

A DELICATE AND INVOLVED PROBLEM

Admittedly this is a delicate and an involved problem. When a youth knocks at the doors of an institution of learning, the presumption is that he is doing so because he wants an education. If that be true, who wants to take the responsibility of denying him entrance? How is it to be determined whether he is seeking schooling or diversion? Who can be sure that he is not knocking for admission merely because he has been sent there by parent or guardian? Who can say that what he will get out of college will be of real benefit to him or to society?

Who knows that an entrance examination may not bar a potential genius? Beethoven could not multiply six by four, it is said, but what university could have survived barring him on such a test? What the alleged scholastic would close its doors to a Phillips Brooks? And yet Phillips Brooks had a defect of speech that seemingly made ridiculous his aspiration to be a preacher.

And then there is the matter of the cost of a college education. That it is pointed out, is far more than the expenses of a young man or young woman for four years. The father who foots the bills for son's tuition, board, room, and incidentals for that period usually thinks he has paid for everything involved in his son's higher education and frequently he believes he has paid too much. He is given to talking about what it cost him to send his boy to college.

But what of the cost to the college incident to taking the boy in and allowing him, educational opportunities for four years? Tuition fees rarely or never cover that. Who pays for the extra plant and equipment when taking that boy in means an overtax on the facilities already provided? What compensates for the deterioration in the educational standards of an institution due to overcrowded classrooms and overcrowded upon libraries, laboratories, and the like?

Who pays the loss suffered by bright, capable, earnest students because the level of instruction must be lowered to take care of the dullards? Who pays for the wear and tear upon professors forced to attempt to do more than they can do?

A SURVEY TO BE MADE

That all this, together with other phases that can not be detailed, is a serious problem as well as one that is delicate and involved is evidenced by the fact that this fall the American Council on Education is beginning a three-year survey to find a solution. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is financing this research work to the extent of $20,000 a year and almost one half of 200 American colleges have agreed already to cooperate in seeing it through.

Four ends will be sought in this survey, according to D. A. Robertson, secretary of the Council. The first is to devise a model personal card, to be used by all colleges for all students. The second is to arrange objective achievement tests to determine just where a student stands in different subjects. The third is to devise a rating scale for personality measurement. The fourth is to supply students with vocational monographs which will aid them to select intelligently the career which they wish to follow after they leave college.

However, as the layman sees and understands this, it all boils down to an effort to ascertain what to do about the overcrowded conditions in our colleges and universities and what to do about students who are just a little deficient in ambition, gray matter, and application.

Before the survey starts, it may be said that it will not be considered as helpful for anyone to advise the Council that if we have too many students we should have more or larger schools. If classrooms are overcrowded they should be enlarged, and that if campuses are overrun with morose the way to get rid of them is to flunk them and send them home. That general answer to the problem has received due consideration and it is more conclusive or satisfactory educational leaders would not have projected this survey.

It may be regarded as an amazing development that the time should come or be at hand when higher education may be limited to those who are especially fitted to benefit by it. One of the big ideas of the founders of this country was that education should be free and later it became a national principle that education should be compulsory up to a certain age level, with college courses open to all who had parents to finance them or who had the will and the ability to work their way through.

The origin of the phrase "watered stock" was in New England, when farmers used to feed their cattle a lot of salt, let them drink all the water they wanted, then sell them by weight.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—"The sweetest thing in life is memory . . ."

An old man was speaking. For a moment he had dropped his cap and bells. The sweetest thing in life is memory. He had abandoned his grease paint box. After all, what was the use? There was plenty of youth and beauty and illusion on the program.

This was no effort at illusion building! This was a memory trying to recreate itself. . . . Old Eddie Foy, at 71, coming back just once. . . . And somehow they didn't laugh when he talked. . . . Ridiculous, isn't it, that Eddie Foy should live to bring tears? "The sweetest thing in life is memory."

There was a funny looking kid running around Ninth Avenue 60 years ago or something like that. And one day he started following a fiddler. The fiddler was making the rounds of the bars. The fiddler let the kid come along and the kid, seeing his chance, began doing buck and wing dances for the beer guzzlers standing along the brass rails. When the pennies and nickels clinked on the floor the kid would pick them up and, at the day's end, he doled out his share. He would run home with them to help a struggling family along.

The family moved to Chicago. The father died and everyone went to work. They lived in a funny, tumble-down house on stilts. The kid, when he wasn't working, practiced tumbling in the back yard. When he was 18 he had found another aerobically inclined youngster. In Dodge City, Kan., one day appeared the team of Foy and Thompson.

"The sweetest thing in life is memory."

Two kids with "dancing shoes" as their only properties. But the dance halls of the west didn't care. Mining camps bustling. . . . The Pacific coast enjoying Bonanza days. . . . Chicago again. . . . The musical stage and then years of trouping. . . . success. . . . marriage. . . . family. . . . And time ticking away!

Year upon year of building up one of the greatest followings a comedian ever had. And then the "Seven Little Foy's." Pa and all the family tripping the boards. Age creeping on. And the family breaking up.

And finally an old man in a little cottage outside of New Rochelle. The kids all gone. A great deal of money left, sitting down to write his memoirs.

Not much left but memoirs. . . . Then a brief come-back. The spotlight again. . . . And Wilton Lackaye, that grand-old-man of the stage, stepping up to present a watch. . . . What an apt gift. . . . A watch! . . . Ticking away the few remaining years.

CITY DEFICIT WILL BE QUARTER MILLION BY END OF FISCAL YEAR

The growing indebtedness under which the city of Appleton is operating cast lurid shadows at a meeting of the common council Wednesday night.

The city clerk, E. L. Williams, was instructed to borrow an additional $28,282.65 in anticipation of the tax levy for 1928, bringing the city deficit to more than $131,000. This figure will be increased about $7,000 in order to meet the fixed salary employees' payroll the first of October.

"At the rate the city is now operating," Mark Catlin said, "we will be a quarter of a million dollars in debt by the end of the fiscal year."

The city will get about 50 per cent of the cost of paving done during the summer, according to the city clerk. The cost of paving operations during the summer amounted to about $90,000, and the city "can count itself lucky" —as Alderman Catlin phrased it —if it collects $50,000 of that sum.

Reward For Car

A reward of $25 is offered for information which will lead to the recovery of an Essex coach, 1926 model, stolen at Madison, Sept. 6, according to word received at the Appleton Police department Thursday morning. An additional $25 is offered for information which will lead to the conviction of the party who stole the machine. The car bore the motor number 417858 and the serial number 349538.

WHY TEACH THEM TO BE LADIES?

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

LIBERTY! What crimes are committed in thy name!

In spite of the fact that youth has been emancipated, there is left to us a certain class of gentlefolk who have seen to it that its younger generation are gentlefolk also.

Unversed in the worldly knowledge of going to "get their man," they proceed to live their lives as quietly and as dutifully as they know how, and the result is that they may quietly and dutifully go on living their lives in solitary joy, if we do not come to their rescue.

In this age of cave-women—I was going to say "vamps" but it is too mild—is it fair or just that we teach our daughters to be "ladies" in the old accepted term, when girls without scruple, decent instinct, or regard for friendship are permitted to break all the rules of propriety?

I saw a tragedy recently that calls for this article. A girl whose entire upbringing had evidently been based on "this freedom" and whose mother was absolutely unorthodox, "just for the fun of the thing" made trouble between an engaged couple and walked off with the man.

The fiancée, too well-bred to protest and with too much self-respect to try to compete with her decidedly commonplace rival, simply bore it without any attempt at defense or retaliation whatever. And people thought nothing about it.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature! Is it right to take away a girl's power of protecting by teaching her to be a lady?

Virtue may be its own reward, but if we are going to close our eyes to vandalism on the part of some of the youth of today why do we try to keep up the mummery of good breeding in others?

Why not make a common standard and give the victims a chance? We may as well cover our daughters with jewels and then shake hands with the vandal who comes to rob them. It would be as consistent as our modern cruel method of putting up the bluff of culture, and then smirking at any little outlaw who chooses to pull our noses.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE bunch were cheered to beat the band, for they were now in Switzerland. Said Scouty, "Let's climb down from here, and meet that girl and boy. But, first of all, we'll tie our kite, so everything will be all right. The thought of meeting strangers really fills me up with joy."

The kite was tied, and down they went right off the roof. Some time was spent in greeting both the girl and boy who stood upon the ground. The Tinites found them very kind. The small boy said, "If you boys, mind, I'll take you in a little shop where toys galore are found."

"Just lead the way," was Copy cried. And soon they found themselves inside a very wonderful toy place, and it gave them all a thrill. The little Swiss had said, "Now, boys, we wish you'd help us make some toys." And all the Tinites answered loud, "You bet your life we will!"

noise grew loud as hammers flew, and every little Tinitite was filled with joy and light.

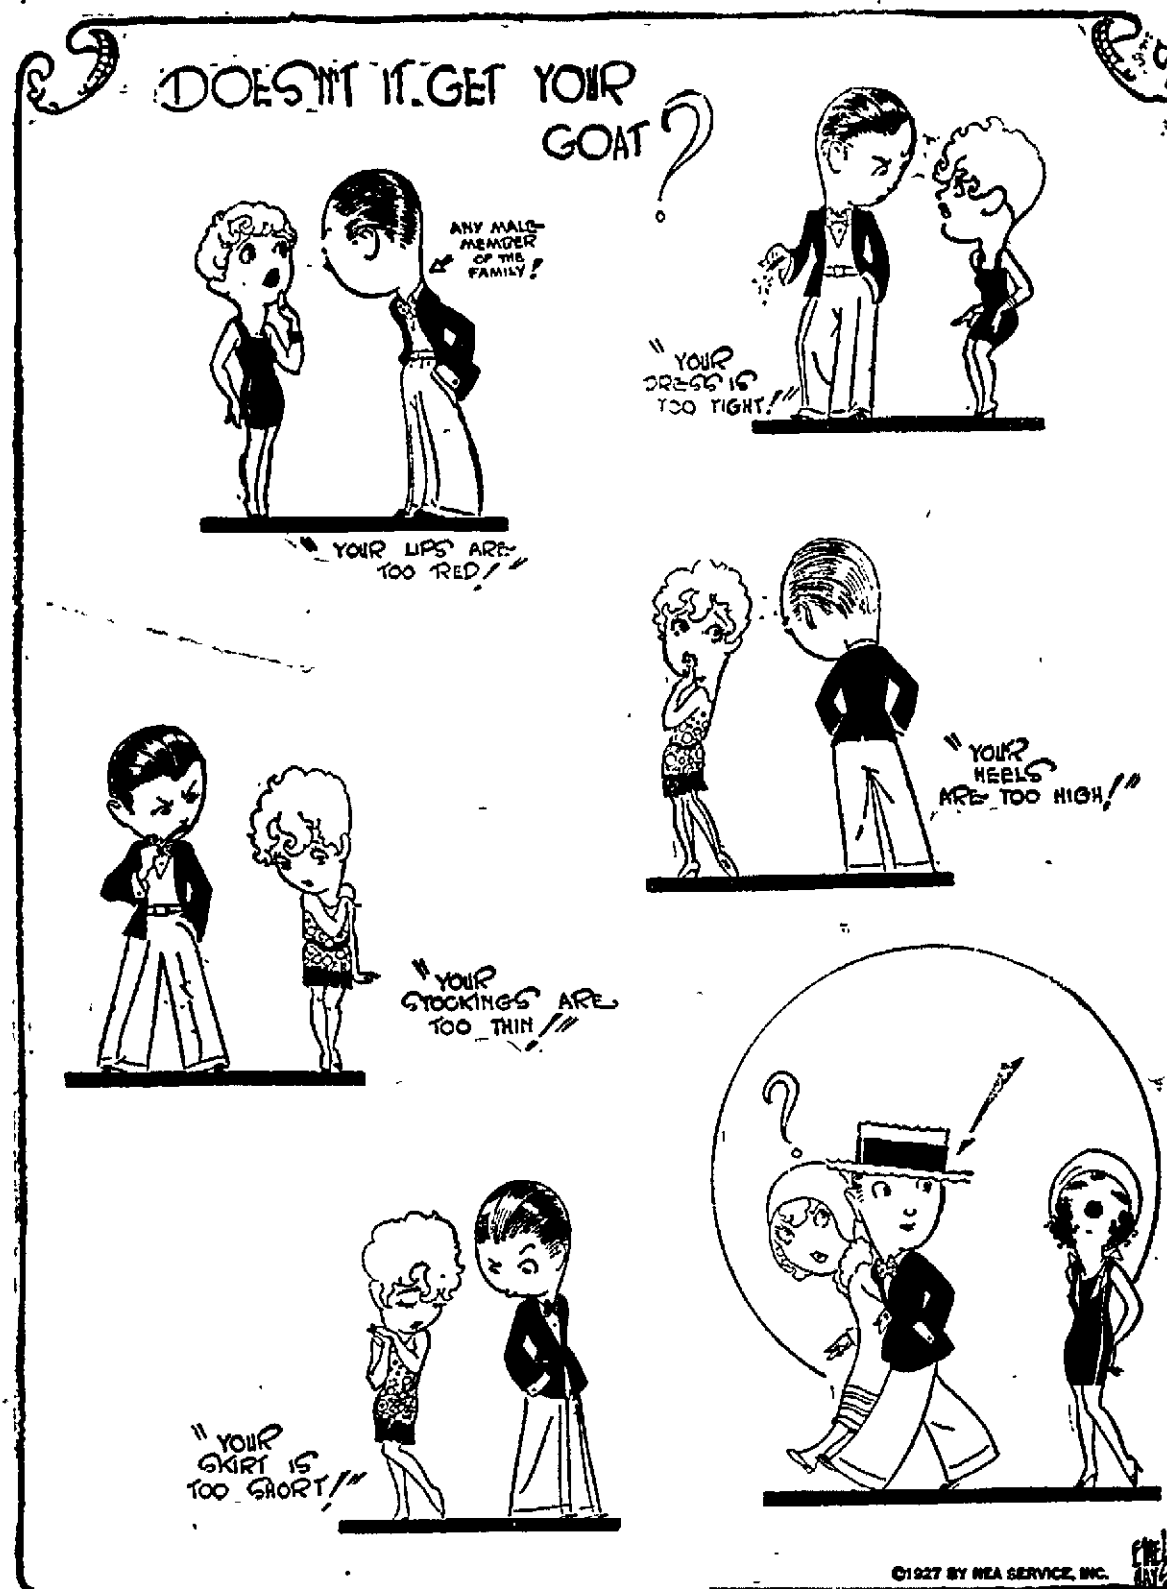

Said Scouty, "This is quite a lark. Just watch me make this Noah's ark. I'll bet the thing will read nice in any quiet stream. Some animals I'll put inside and give them all a dandy ride. Say, honestly, this job is not so hard as it might seem."

Then Clowny answered, "Look at me. I'm just as clever as can be." A little doll sat in his lap, as Clowny worked away. He found some paint around the place and painted up the doll's face. Like all the other Tinites, Clowny took the work like play.

(The Tinitites land in Belgium in the next story.)

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

The struggle between the strong white man and the aged negro last night a few minutes, minutes that seemed like hours to Faith, who was sobbingly pitting her strength with Bob's against the foul old door.

When they had won and were in the evil-smelling, faintly lighted room, they faced a gloowering black fury, a vast, shapeless old woman, whose head was bound in a dirty red bandanna, but whose glittering black eyes, set in an incredibly wrinkled and fat old face, looked as young as those of the colored boy who had directed them to the place.

"Whyfo yo' break down mah do' white folks?" "Aunt Chloe" shrilled. "Ah ain't got yo' washin'—"

"But you have our baby," Faith panted. "Where is she? Oh, Bob, find her quick and let's get out of here. It's terrible. I'm about to faint—these awful odors!"

"Dat mah baby cryin'," the old woman shuffled to Faith on bare, hideously deformed black feet. "You white folks git outa hyar, else Ah calls de plice, she threatened loudly. her voice trying to drown the renewed wailing of the baby."

But Faith paid no attention. Following the sound of the baby's cries, she rushed from the front room into the other room of the shack—the kitchen. The old negroess attempted to follow her, but Bob, overcoming his distaste of touching the filthy rags with which her vast old body was covered, seized her huge arms and held her back.

And in the kitchen, lying in an ancient baby buggy drawn up to the warmth of a crackling fire in a broken cast-iron stove, she found Bob. The baby was dressed in one of the exquisite little hand-embroidered dresses she had made for it, and wrapped in its own fleecy blue-and-white blanket, which the kidnapper had snatched from the crib.

Faith stooped and gathered the baby gently into her arms, deaf to the clamor in the other room. She knew only that she had her baby safe again.

"Got her, Faith?" Bob called exultantly. "Now, look here, Aunt Chloe, if you don't want to get locked up in the calaboose you'll come to the door with me and send that bunch of young hoodlums away. I guess you know how to scare 'em all right. Tell 'em we've got our baby that you were keeping for us. Otherwise Chris Wiley is going to spend a long, long time in the hospital, and I gather you don't want that to happen. You were his nurse when he was a baby and you don't want him to get hurt, do you?"

The old woman began to rock and moan. "Ah ain't gwine to let dat baby go outen mah sight! Mistah Chris bring her to me to ta' cyar of fo' him. He says she his'n. He ain't no kidnappin'! Dat baby his'n. Dis ain't dat baby's ma," she lifted her head to glare at Faith. "Ah seen its ma. She got red ha'n, she have. Gimme back dat baby!" She tried to rise, to hurl herself upon Faith, but Bob, with unsuspected strength, held her down.

"Look here, Aunt Chloe! I'm a policeman myself," Bob panted, taking a hand from one of her shoulders to flip back the lapel of his coat. His deputy prohibition enforcement officer's badge, which had served him well before on a notable occasion, glinted brightly. The symbol of authority completely cowed the old woman. Groaning and muttering, she allowed them to leave, and even followed them to the door and waved a farewell, intended to deceive the pack of curious trouble-loving children clustered about the car and in the yard. And tucked under his arm Bob carried the bundle of baby clothes which Chris had stolen along with the infant.

"Drive fast, Bob! To Cherry!" Faith cried, smiling through her tears, her jealousy of Cherry forgotten in her joy.

NEXT: Cherry, a real mother.

ETIQUET HINTS

1—How soon should one call on a personal friend who has just had a baby?

2—If she is not a very close friend how soon should the call be made?

3—Is it all right to leave your card at the hospital, with flowers or a gift for the baby, instead of going up to see them?

THE ANSWERS
1—Usually when the baby is five days old. This depends upon hospital regulations and the condition of the mother.
2—When she gets home.
3—You may stay only a minute, but it is better to go up to see the mother, if possible. Mothers of new babies like to have friends see them.

Fourteen-year-old Cleanthe Carr came from a Pennsylvania convent, unheralded by the magazines or news papers. Nor did she even know herself that she was going to cartoon the famous faces of filmdom.

But she had to amuse herself while spending the summer vacation with her mother, who is a scenario reader, so she looked around and drew pictures of the stars.

Now the critics hail Cleanthe as a genius. She is going back to New York soon to finish her preparatory school course, and plans to begin studying art under instructors there. Although her father, Gene Carr, is a successful cartoonist, Cleanthe has not taken any lessons from anyone. "Except a few at the convent," she explains, "but I dropped that course in a hurry because I was scolded for not putting enough clothes on my figures."

Cleanthe was born in Red Bank, N. J., but lived there only a year. When not at school she is usually with her aunt in Brooklyn or in California with her mother.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is: AFTER A NO TRUMP, A DOUBLE IS NOT TO WORK BETTER THAN A SUIT-BID WHEN TWO OR MORE ANSWERS WOULD BE SATISFACTORY.

This week we are considering twenty best hands, South (Dealer) having bid one No Trump. What should West declare?

NO. 9

NO. 11

♣ J

No. 9. Pass. This hand probably can keep the adverse No Trump from going game, but stands little chance of making game by forcing a partner to bid, and still less by bidding Clubs. Hands of this type are frequently held; they have the appearance of considerable strength but, with them, any declaration but a pass over a No Trump would be a serious error.

No. 10. Pass. The hand has not the eight tricks needed for a suit-bid. It has the high-card strength for a double, but could permit the partner's answer to stand only if made in Diamonds (which would not be apt to produce). An adverse game at No Trump is improbable, and generally a hand of this type will work better with a pass than with any other declaration.

No. 11. Double. The hand has the high-card strength to justify the declaration and may readily produce game if the partner give a Major answer. If the partner answer with a Minor, the hand has a sound Heart bid. While game probably can be saved if an adverse No Trump be allowed to stand, there is too good a chance of winning a game to make a pass advisable.

No. 12. Two Hearts. Game at Hearts is quite probable; there is but slight chance that a double would produce an answer from partner that would work as well as a Heart bid. Three Hearts instead of two would be justified, but with the strength of the hand, pre-emption seems unnecessary.

The four hands to be considered tomorrow are:

FEW NEW HOMES GO UP IN KAUKAUNA IN LAST TWELVE MONTHS

Cheap Rent Is Blamed for Paralysis of Building Industry

Kaukauna — Not as many homes have been built in Kaukauna this year as in past years, Joseph Jansen, president of the Kaukauna Lumber and Manufacturing Co., said Wednesday. Building has taken a decided slump. Modern new homes are under construction at the present time for Joseph Lefevre, brick, Wisconsin-ave. Rev. Robert B. Falk, frame, Sixth-st. John Hennes, brick, Doty-st. Peter Rausch, frame, on north shore of Kaukauna lake. The four-story, four-parlor, A. Van Lannan, frame, Marquette-st. W. Tuttle, brick, Law-st. L. Gerend, frame, White City. Ben Biese, frame, Brothers-st.

Mr. Jansen said the slump in building probably was due to cheap rent. "There is a shortage of homes in Kaukauna but nobody will build when they can rent so cheaply. When it comes to this fact many new homes would be built in the city. Very little building has been going on within the city but the farmers living around Kaukauna have been doing more building."

Mayor W. C. Sullivan suggested that "Some firm should erect and finance the homes and then they would see how quickly they would be sold. It is strange that no Kaukauna business men will venture into the home building industry. In the past few years only two homes have been built by a Kaukauna building company and this year none have been built although one of the firms helped to finance a home. In glancing through daily papers you notice in practically every other city in the state where construction companies have secured building permits for the erection of a number of homes."

"Why not in Kaukauna? There is just as big an opportunity for construction companies. As I have said before if local businessmen will not avail themselves of this opportunity then I shall get in touch with some of the larger concerns outside of the city and see if a few more homes can't be erected in Kaukauna."

Most of the building being done this fall is on the north side as has been the case in the past few years. However it is expected that there will be a building boom on the south side as soon as the paving is finished. The eighteen lots which the city had for sale in the Third ward are almost all disposed of.

Among the new buildings to be constructed this fall will be the new St. Mary Catholic school on the south side. Bids for this building will be opened about Oct. 1.

A modern new furniture store will be erected by Fargo and Co., in the company's present property on Wisconsin-ave. This will be a modern two-story building.

Mayor Sullivan will introduce a resolution at the special meeting to be held on Friday night condemning the property in back of Wisconsin-ave. from that an alley might be built from Law-st. to Duane-st. The mayor explained that the block is a fire hazard at present and that the alley is a necessity. The city will pay the merchants on the street for damages they suffer.

PRAIRIE CHICKENS ARE PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR

Kaukauna — Tuesday was a big day for hunting prairie chicken according to Joseph Jansen, president of the Kaukauna Lumber and Manufacturing Co., who spent the early part of the week north of Oconto reservation with T. N. Ellworth, C. Hilsenberg and Frank Hilsenberg. On Tuesday the hunters found the largest number of hens they had seen in a long time and each man got the limit of five chickens.

The same four hunters are preparing to hunt pheasants at Oconto. They will leave on Oct. 3. The season is open for ring neck pheasant on each Monday during the month of October but only in certain townships. The bag limit is two birds.

ASHE TALKS FOOTBALL TO ADVANCEMENT CLUB

Kaukauna — William Ashe gave a short talk on football at the weekly luncheon of the Kaukauna Advancement association held at the Legion building Wednesday noon. Mr. Ashe formerly coached the Kaukauna American Legion team, state amateur champions for three years and at the present time is coaching Lawrence College football team along with his duties as employment manager of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. of this city. Joseph Lefevre presided at the meeting.

NO MORE GUN CLUB SHOOT THIS FALL

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna Gun club will not hold any more shoots this year because of the cold weather. Very little interest is shown in the club during the hunting season and the officers decided Wednesday that it would be futile to attempt more shoots this fall. The club has enjoyed an average season. A new double trap was constructed on the club grounds during the summer.

The Post-Crescent's representative at Kaukauna is Gordon Patton. His telephone numbers are 298 J and 10. Business with The Post-Crescent may be transacted through Mr. Patton.

Farmers Cut Corn Fearing Repetition Of Last Fall

Special to Post-Crescent

Forest Junction — With the first killing frost of the season threatening for several nights in succession this week, a new impetus was given to corn-cutting and shelling which under abnormally high September temperatures, have somewhat reluctantly begun on the farms in this vicinity last week.

Not any of the corn has ripened. But fearing a repetition of last year's untoward harvest, when the corn was badly frozen, and heavy rains delayed and finally necessitated the cutting of the crop by hand, farmers are choosing to take the corn in its present condition. In spite of the unfavorable outlook for the crop earlier in the season, most of the fields now show the normal amount of stalks and leaves. Some of the fields which had been particularly backward were pastured during the month of August, when a long period of dry weather had caused a shortage of green feed for cattle.

Two minor accidents in connection with the corn harvest have occurred here. On Tuesday forenoon, in a shelling operation at his farm, E. W. Haecker sustained a broken finger and two or more mangled finger tips, when his left hand was struck by the revolving fan in the blower attachment of the cutter, from which he was attempting to remove an obstruction while the machinery was in motion.

At the Frank Ott farm last week, Henry Ott injured the tip of one of his fingers in the tractor pulley while the belt was being removed from the outfit at the close of a day's activities.

Other activities occupying the attention of farmers at the present time include the harvesting of after-growth of red clover for seed, seeding of winter grains, and plowing for spring crops. Grain threshing is virtually completed. The sugar harvest will be an almost negligible feature in this vicinity, there being only thirty-six acres devoted to the crop in the entire township of Brillion. The unfortunate outcome of the crop last year, when many of the beets were abandoned with the sudden advent of winter, was discouraging to growers. The mechanical beet loader erected last fall at the railroad siding here was removed over summer and has not been rebuilt.

The residence and premises on N. Pine-st., occupied by Mrs. Julius Franke, and owned by Theodore Franke of Brillion, have been purchased by Leonard Krueger who expects to take possession of the place by the end of this month. The William Haecker residence in the village, where the Krueger family have been tenants, is expected to be occupied again by the family of the owner, who have been living in a farm residence with their son for the past 18 months.

A horse-drawn grader is being temporarily employed by Paul Zurbel, local county highway patrolman, on his beat over portions of Federal Highway 10 and State Highways 57 and 114, while the county power grader, used over this stretch since last spring, is undergoing repairs. The power machine was put out of commission about two weeks ago.

A two-year-old pure-bred Percheron stallion, previously owned by Frank Kloehe, was shipped from here on Wednesday morning to William Lehmann at Crystal Lake, Ill. The animal was raised at the Kloehe farm here.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature — colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness — and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 year's practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home — where many live — one is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

HOW THE RADIO WAS INVENTED

When Arthur Hauk brought forth for the approval of the theatre-going public that delightful tabloid musical show known as "Arthur Hauk's Sunshine Revue" it became an instantaneous hit, in fact it became so popular that all you could hear people say was "Have you seen 'Arthur Hauk's big Sunshine Revue'?" People congregated on the streets in such great numbers that traffic officers had to forbid the gathering of people on the streets to discuss this very pleasing show for fear that traffic would get all jammed up, so the people who had seen and were pleased with "Arthur Hauk's Sunshine Revue" went to their homes and started to use the telephone with the result that all the phones in the cities where "The Sunshine Revue" played were in such constant use that another method and means of communication had to be devised, hence the radio and since the advent of that great invention broadcasting has become a very common affair but it has in no manner stopped or prevented the pleased patrons from broadcasting to their friends and neighbors the pleasing news that the best show they have ever witnessed is "Arthur Hauk's Sunshine Revue," playing in Fischer's Appleton theatre today and tomorrow in conjunction with the triumphant return of "The Covered Wagon."

TIME ADDS GLORY TO "THE COVERED WAGON"

James Cruze's Paramount production "The Covered Wagon" is still entitled to a place at the head of the list. There has never been such a picture as this one which makes a triumphant return to Fischer's Appleton Theatre showing today and tomorrow.

"The production is undoubtedly one of the most magnificent screen presentations ever shown here. If you saw it on its original visit, you can well afford to see it again but if you missed it at that time, you can't afford to miss it again! The long line of excellent players is headed by J. Warren Kerrigan and Lois Wilson. The latter will be remembered for her fine work in "The Vanishing American."

As Will Hamlon, leader of a wagon train, Kerrigan falls in love with Molly Winstrate (Miss Wilson) whom he meets when his wagons join those headed by her father (Charles Ogle.) Alan Hale, playing the role of Sam Woodhull, a scoundrel, is engaged to Lois, and bitter rivalry arises between him and Hamlon.

Throughout the story, Woodhull is set on "getting" Hamlon. After a series of thrilling events, he encounters Hamlon in California where the latter has made a fortune in the gold fields. Woodhull is about to shoot from am-

ASSESSMENT REPORT WILL BE READY SOON

The final statistical report of the property valuation of Outagamie county will be completed and sent to the state department at Madison as soon as the city of Appleton has filed its complete report, according to Leo J. Toonen, county assessor of incomes. All other reports are in and E. L. Williams, city clerk, will deliver Appleton's report this week. Appleton's report has been delayed for about five weeks through the illness of George E. Peotter, city assessor, who was stricken with appendicitis while his work was in progress this summer.

When Jackson, an old scout, sees Woodhull and kills him. Hamlon is informed that he has been cleared of certain charges and—but see this fine picture! The passage of time has only served to add to its glory!

DEMAND DROPS FOR HUNTING LICENSES

In the few days since the opening of duck hunting season last Friday, very few hunting licenses have been issued through the county as compared with the number issued in the few days just before the season opened, according to John E. Hentschel, county clerk. Up to last Friday 1,875 licenses had been issued while since that time the total has just reached 2,000, the county clerk said. The rabbit hunting season opens Oct. 1, and the county clerk expects that the demand for licenses will again increase just before that date.

LES SMITH AND KAUKAUNA INVADE APPLETON FOR LOOP GAME

New Local Lineup Faces Tough Task With Kawmen, Victors In Last Meeting

Boyle or Crowe Local Mound Choice for Sunday Battle: Gertz Is Kaw Twirler

Neenah	6	13	.316
Kaukauna	5	11	.303

SUNDAY GAMES
KAUKAUNA AT APPLETON
Kimberly at Oshkosh.
Neenah at Menasha.
Green Bay, bye.

Les Smith and his warblers, which beat Appleton in its last game with Kaukauna, will lead the invasion of Appleton Sunday when the Kawmen come to Brandt park for a Fox River Valley league game. Although the Smith crew is on the cellar step in the flag chase, local fans remember what happened in that last game, just after Appleton won two straight battles and Les Smith's club will be especially potent with the short right garden wall here.

Kaukauna can be Neenah for sixth place and come out of the lone cellar hold by a win if Menasha trounces its twin city rival. Appleton is clinging to a half-game lead of third place over two foes and a loss while either or both will dump the Beauty from fourth or even fifth place. Kimberly probably will halt Oshkosh at Oshkosh but Menasha is likely to dislodge the locals, should they lose, by a run from Neenah. Green Bay, draws the bye and an Appleton win will give the locals a slim chance for second place before the loop season ends as the locals must play the Bays and a couple postponed battles. As the Bays have just one less loss than the locals but they have four more wins, with all their postponed games played off.

Appleton's makeshift lineup of last week that worked so well against Oshkosh probably will start but the hurling selection is a problem. With Refke still in bad shape, "Lefty" Hans Boyle seems the logical man to face the Kawmen with Crowe also ready to start. Mayeske and Stoffel will be in reserve.

Baetz probably will handle the big mit as he did Saturday last Sunday and this will shift either Crowe or Boyle to right field unless one of the utility men is used. If Boyle works, Crowe is a likely right field starter because of his hitting last week and his excellent fielding. As clouted a homer, double and single in five bats against Oshkosh. Then Ebert and Fuminger are good outfielders and the latter is a fair stickler.

In the other gardens will be the vets, Hillman and Van Wyck. The infield will have Radtke at first, Trow at second, Brautigan at short and Schultz at last.

If Schultz is not present last will take the job as he handled hard hit balls in his direction in great style last week. If Schultz is back, Last may catch or alternate with Baetz, in which case Baetz could fill his old place in right.

Gertz and Wenzel probably will form the Kaw battery. Several new men also appear in the Kaukauna lineup since the last Appleton game, especially in the infield, and they are said to be a vast improvement over the old lineup. Al Gosha, former Appleton shortstop, also is used by the Kawmen and he probably will see action against his old mates.

200-POUND CARROLL GUARD BREAKS BONE

Waukegan—A noticeable gap was made in the Carroll college line Tuesday by the removal of George Hoffman, Watertown, a 200-pound tackle on the 1926 team, whose collarbone was broken in scrimmage. Capt. Ham Catterton, all-around lineman, is expected to replace him.

CLEVELAND PROS STILL LOOKING FOR BATTLES

The Cleveland Panthers football team, composed of ex-college and professional players, are desiring to book games in this vicinity, with any lead in semi-pro or professional football teams. Those interested may write or wire George T. Jones at 3334 E. 143th st., Cleveland, Ohio.

15 Big Intersectional Games This Grid Season

New York—Each autumn your rabid football fan eagerly thumbs the schedules, checking off his future and dishes with all the zest of a starving sailor young a ten-course banquet.

Here is a condensed and handy resume of the red-letter events of 1927 with a crisp bit of comment on the probable bearing of the intersectional clashes.

There are about 15 important games this autumn (but try and convince the boys at dear old Bucknash that they're becoming just don't count).

These 15 games are listed on the regular schedule but by the time the lads are finished setting up post-season affairs every fan will have an intersectional circus in his neighborhood and back yard.

PACKERS SET FOR CLEVELAND BATTLE

Bross, Star of Wilson's Wildcats, Joins Baymen for Loop Season

BULLETIN

Marty Bross, one of the stars of the 1926 Wilson Wildcats, reported for practice with the Packers Thursday morning. The speedy backfielder should be a valuable addition to the team as he "burned up" the Grange league last fall.

Bross weighs about 170 pounds and he is built on chunky lines. Records show that he is a brilliant open field runner and an "ace" in the forward passing attack.

The former Gonzaga all-Pacific coast luminary looks to be in good shape and he will probably be ready to step into the line up whenever the occasion demands.

Green Bay—Sunday is going to be "Benny Friedman Day" at the city stadium and Michiganans for miles around are coming here to pay tribute to the Wolverine star, who according to Fielding Yost, is one of the greatest gridderers that ever pranced across a chalk marked field.

Friedman is the "main prize" of the Cleveland Bulldogs and the mix-up against the Packers will be the famed Wolverines debut as a pro footballer.

HERO AT MICHIGAN
For three years, Friedman, who is a home town Clevelander, made football history at Ann Arbor. He was practically the unanimous choice for All-American quarterback in 1923 and 1926.

Shortly after the National League meeting was held here, the news flashed through upper Michigan that Friedman was going to play in Green Bay on Sept. 25. Ever since that date the natives of the upper peninsula have counted the days until they would have a chance to see their idol and now that the time is close at hand everybody who can beg, borrow or steal a ride down from the "Yukon" is planning to be here Sunday.

And the Wolverines will have music too as the Norway city band is to be here on Sunday for the Packer-Cleveland game. However, this "Norway" musicians most likely will be on the fence as far as "pulling" concerned. Of course, they are strong for Michigan and Friedman, but, on the other hand, R. Rosatti, star Packer tackle, is a resident of Norway and sometimes neighborhood ties are a bit stronger than collegiate ones. Aside from the band, there will be about 300 football fans from Norway and vicinity here for the game.

Reservations have been received from nearly every city in upper Michigan. A flock of fans are coming down from Marquette. Ishpeming will be represented along with Stambaugh, Ironwood, Iron Mountain, Escanaba, Gladstone, Menominee and a flock of other towns. One thing is sure, Benny and his troopers won't lack for support when the whistle blows.

This Michigan-Wisconsin encounter most likely will be a whole lot closer than the Badger-Wolverine college games of the past two years. Benny Friedman always took special delight in running wild over Wisconsin clemens but the Packer followers are willing to bet good money that he will find things a bit different here than when he faced the "U" products from Madison.

Many football fans in this part of the state have a vivid recollection of Friedman's performance against Wisconsin in 1925. On the first play after the initial kickoff, Friedman zipped a long pass to Oosterbaan and the other half of the famous "Benny pair" scooted for a touchdown.

Wisconsin kicked off again and this time Friedman tucked the ball under his armand hot-footed it some 80 odd yards for a touchdown while the Badger gridders got blisters on their tootsies trying to catch him. But Sunday is another day and if Friedman gets away for another run like this the Packer followers will be willing to admit that he is the king of 'em when it comes to footballing.

SUES TUNNEY

THOMAS M. McHALE

Here's Thomas M. McHale of New York, who a few days before the Dempsey-Tunney fight sued Gene Tunney for $15,000 charging breach of contract as social secretary to Gene. The handsome Tunney merely murmured a "tut-tut" to the suit and remanded away from Chicago to prevent papers being served on him.

SID TERRIS TURNS SLUGGER, WANTS TO MEET SAM MANDELL

Lightweight Boxer Becomes Hitter Suddenly in Ruby Goldstein Battle

BY JIMMY POWERS

New York—There is a certain young Jewish lad who is quite likely, in the course of a few months, to be pitted against a certain Italian chappie for the lightweight championship of the world.

Referring, of course, to Sid Terris and Sammy Mandell, the parties, respectively, of the first and second parties.

Now there is an old axiom in boxing—"A slugger once, a slugger always." And by the same token, the identical rule holds true with respect to the tap, dance and skip-away feather duster.

There are current only two notable exceptions to the rule. One is Mike McTigue. The other is Sid Terris.

Old Mike's change is remarkable in that it did not come upon him until an advanced age. Terris is more fortunate. He has altered his style while still in his prime with many useful ring years ahead of him.

Not that he has discarded all his clever footwork or speed. He still gallops around as fast as ever and lives up to his nickname, "Ghost of the Ghetto." But now he is a stalking, crafty, shifty killer who lunges out with rapier-like lefts and rights, maneuvers his prey into position and then—wham, over goes the bone-crushing finish.

"I lost my head and became a puncher," says Sid. "In my recent bout with Ruby Goldstein he clipped me one and down I went."

"It was only the first round. There I lay blinking on the canvas. I could hear the crowd roar, the referee count, see the lights blazing down mercilessly and my opponent standing up—the conqueror."

"Suddenly something snapped. My well-planned battle faded. I rose and whaled away, slashing wildly, recklessly. I was fortunate in finding the range and down Ruby went—for keeps."

"That was a thrill I'll never forget."

College Captains

HODGEN, OF OREGON

Eugene, Ore. — Oregon's strongest man in the line—that is how they term Beryl Hodgen, captain of the Oregon football team this year.

Hodgen plays guard, a position he was switched to after serving in his freshman and sophomore years as a back.

Captain John J. McEwan, former West Point coach, caused the change. One glimpse at the big 195-pound back was enough for McEwan to break out with the statement that Hodgen was a natural lineman, and to the line Hodgen went.

Hodgen has just turned 21 and that gives him the distinction of being one of the youngest players ever to captain the Oregon football team.

Rated as one of the best guards on the Pacific coast last year, Hodgen is expected to make a strong bid for national honors this season.

He is sending himself through school. During the summer months he works as a carpenter, which, incidentally, has aided in keeping him in physical condition for the football season.

It is still vivid in my mind. From that time on I really got a kick, a pleasure, out of fighting."

There is little doubt that Terris is a comer—and a game one. For a while there was whispered of his ability to take it when Eddie Wagner knocked him out three years ago. But later bouts with Billy Wallace, Ruby Goldstein, Jimmy Goodrich and Phil McGraw are proof of his red badge of courage.

The champion, Mandell, is doing all he can to dodge him. Now pressure is being brought on the national commission to force a showdown.

When it comes you'll see Terris, the puncher, not Terris, the feather-duster, in there whanging away.

Coming From Oklahoma

Plans are being made to run a "Waner Special" from Tulsa, Okla., if the Pittsburgh Pirates are in the world series.

Williams Picks Tunney; Remembers Jack's Work

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Chicago — And now—con the old Manassa Mauler do it? Is it in the cards for Jack Dempsey, the most spectacular figure in modern ring history, to come back and win the championship?

Your guess is as good as mine. Probably better. I am one of those bright young men who predicted a year ago that Mr. Gene Tunney would look like a mug against Dempsey.

What I think about this fight should therefore not be taken too seriously. You may ask if Dempsey is any better than he was a year ago. On the premise that he couldn't be any worse and walk, the answer, in a well modulated voice, is hell yes.

I am convinced that the worst error Dempsey made last year was his failure to fight at least one battle, one of the Risks or Renaults of the ring, before the Battle of the Sequel.

Dempsey had been out of the ring three years. No fighter can stay away from active ring service that long and expect to come back a first-class foeman with his warring weapons 100 per cent perfect.

All the training he had done from March to September hadn't kept him from being rusty, hadn't keyed his fighting instincts to the point where he was able to grasp his one fleeting moment of golden chance at Philadelphia.

I refer to that fourth round when Dempsey had a chance to win and, by his own admission, he didn't know it. His nervous system was clogged. The messages from the noodle to the fists were slow in coming through.

Maybe Dempsey wouldn't have beaten Tunney last year even if he had fought two or three times before. But he will be in a position, because of his fight against Tunney and his subsequent fight against Sharkey, to give Tunney a hard, testing fight.

And if the chance like the one developed in that fourth round comes again this year, he'll, well, he'll knock the social lion of the gold coast clear out into the lake.

But I am detouring.

If Tunney was good enough to win ten rounds out of ten against Dempsey last year, why shouldn't he do it again this year? Possibly he will win by a more decisive margin. And it may be that Tunney could whip Dempsey the best day he ever saw.

But—Tunney did not whip Dempsey the best day he ever saw when he whipped him at Philadelphia. I mean to say Dempsey wasn't as good as he might have been and when I say this I do not mean to detract in the least from the remarkable fight Mr. Gene Tunney fought.

This year Dempsey will be better. How much better is a matter of conjecture. He comes into the ring with two hard fights under his belt. Whether that is important enough to bring him home in front is another thing.

Tunney is no worse than he was last year. Very likely he is better. The knowledge that he mastered Dempsey has stiffened his fighting fibre and his moral sinews.

I'd like to be able to bring along with Dempsey and maybe I should. But I can't forget how feeble he looked against Tunney a year ago, nor can I forget the mediocre fight he made against Jack Sharkey. I say that, mind you, despite the fact that Dempsey has been my foremost idol of the ring.

I concede Dempsey the chance you must always concede him—the chance to land with a killing punch at any given moment during the fight, but this is, I fear, an outside chance.

Tunney ought to win. He hasn't much to fear fighting the cautious fight he is sure to fight. He is faster and a more accurate puncher. He has more stamina. He is a splendid body puncher with a right hand. He has enough power in that right hand to win by a knockout, and if he opens up and takes a few chances, he may.

COBB QUITS DIAMOND, MAY RETIRE FROM GAME

Philadelphia, Pa.—(AP) Cobb has cast aside his baseball uniform for the season and possibly forever. The famous outfielder has been given a vacation for the remainder of the season by Connie Mack and was on his way to Wyoming Thursday for a hunting trip. Before leaving the city he said he was undecided about returning to the Athletics next year. The "Georgia Peach" is 41 years old. Unofficial batting averages show that Cobb finished the season with a record of 178 hits in 450 times at bat for a percentage of .397.

again this year? Possibly he will win by a more decisive margin. And it may be that Tunney could whip Dempsey the best day he ever saw.

But—Tunney did not whip Dempsey the best day he ever saw when he whipped him at Philadelphia. I mean to say Dempsey wasn't as good as he might have been and when I say this I do not mean to detract in the least from the remarkable fight Mr. Gene Tunney fought.

This year Dempsey will be better. How much better is a matter of conjecture. He comes into the ring with two hard fights under his belt. Whether that is important enough to bring him home in front is another thing.

Tunney is no worse than he was last year. Very likely he is better. The knowledge that he mastered Dempsey has stiffened his fighting fibre and his moral sinews.

I'd like to be able to bring along with Dempsey and maybe I should. But I can't forget how feeble he looked against Tunney a year ago, nor can I forget the mediocre fight he made against Jack Sharkey. I say that, mind you, despite the fact that Dempsey has been my foremost idol of the ring.

I concede Dempsey the chance you must always concede him—the chance to land with a killing punch at any given moment during the fight, but this is, I fear, an outside chance.

Tunney ought to win. He hasn't much to fear fighting the cautious fight he is sure to fight. He is faster and a more accurate puncher. He has more stamina. He is a splendid body puncher with a right hand. He has enough power in that right hand to win by a knockout, and if he opens up and takes a few chances, he may.

150,000 PAIRS OF EYES SEE BIG BOUT AT SOLDIERS FIELD

Dempsey, Scaling Around 196, Has Five Pound Advantage Over Champ Gene

Chicago (P)—For the brief space of 30 minutes or less, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, fighting for the heavyweight championship in a ten-round decision match Thursday night at Soldier Field, will hold the eyes and ears of the sporting world.

For that short span of time, close to 150,000 pairs of eyes, paying upwards of $2,500,000 for the privilege will focus upon the most expensive and most spectacular drama the ring has ever known. Millions all over the world will hear or read about details of this gigantic spectacle through the concentration of radio, telegraph and cable facilities.

Thursday, as the time for the battle neared, as the launch of fandom from all parts of the country reached its peak and as the last minute hubbub increased, it seemed that nothing short of a world war could cause, at one time as much commotion and universal interest as this duel of padded mitts between a scholarly, scientific young champion of 23 and a two-fisted, hip-tearing slugger of 32 trying to batter his way back to the top of the pugilistic ladder.

Dempsey, on the crest of a wave of popularity and sentiment that attaches itself to so flaming a comeback, seemed destined to enter the ring a favorite, so far as the crowd was concerned, but the General pre-battle consensus regarded the outcome as a toss up. Betting odds steadying after a drift toward Dempsey, were largely on a basis of "even money and take your pick."

Tunney was assured an unprecedented purse of $1,000,000, regardless of whether he retains or loses his grasp on the principal sceptre of the prize ring. Dempsey adds $450,000 to a collection of ring earnings that already have run well over $2,000,000 to prove beyond a doubt that the Manassas Mauler is the greatest drawing card in boxing history.

The traditional weather luck of the man who pulls the strings to this epoch-making sports show, Tex Rickard seemed as good as ever in the prediction of clear weather. It was likely to be cool enough to cause the crowd to bundle up as it usually does for football games.

It will be a "highbrow" crowd that gathers for this up to date gladiatorial contest.

SOCIETY GATHERS

A gathering of society, millionaire business leaders and figures high in public life will occupy the choicest $40 seats.

More fandom at large will border the outer darkness of this notable ringside cast, paying from $5 for a birdseye view, an eighth of a mile from the ring.

A. A. PENNANT CHASE STILL MORE TANGLED

Chicago (P)—Instead of clearing up, the three cornered American Association pennant chase was more befuddled than ever Thursday — four days before the end of the season.

Only a game and a half separates the league leader, Milwaukee, from the third-place occupants, Chicago, Cincinnati. Each of the contenders changed positions Wednesday. Kansas City going from first to third place, Milwaukee from second to first and Toledo from third to second.

of boxing dramas heavily guarded were near the scene of combat early. Dempsey spent the night in a Chicago hotel while Tunney was to arrive early in the morning to go into sculscion preliminary to the ceremony of weighing in early this afternoon.

Dempsey, expected to scale around 196, was expected to have about five pounds advantage over the champion but otherwise there was little to choose in their respective physical makeups, or to judge from the assertions of their handlers, in the edge of their fighting trim.

BOTH IN FORM

Dempsey, was declared to be close to the savage, aggressive fighting form and the punching power that marked him in the days when he bowled over such men as Willard, Carpenter and Firpo. Tunney, the master boxer and ring strategist, was pronounced more skillful, more confident and better equipped to defend his crown, in spite of a year of competitive inaction, than he was when he outought the veteran Dempsey last September. Dempsey's hopes of victory and a comeback to the heights he held for seven years were built on the rushing, give and take fury of his attack. The champions reliance was in footwork, his counter attacking effectiveness and resourcefulness, as well as in a stamina that has enabled him to weather many a flurry of gloves.

Youth and speed were in the titleholder's favor, hitting and aggressiveness in the challengers' favor.

The selection of the referee and judges, who will decide the issues, remained a matter of speculation Thursday.

The day of battle found all legal barriers cleared. The final attempt to obtain an injunction, brought by the Coliseum club on the basis of an old contract with Dempsey, was dismissed Wednesday. The big battle was to start at approximately 9:45 o'clock Chicago daylight time, under last minute agreement but this was scheduled to change. In the event of threatening weather, Tex Rickard said, it would be moved ahead of schedule. The preliminary bouts were to start at 8.

ORANGEMEN WORK HARD FOR WAUPUN

Line Shows Improvement as Opening Game Approaches; Schafer May Play

With only a few days left before the opening game of the season against Waupun as tough an opening day foe as an Orange squad ever encountered, Coach Joseph Shields drove his Appleton high school gridiron warriors through a long, hard practice Wednesday afternoon at Spencer-st field, featured by a scrimmage starting from a kickoff, in which both teams carried the ball as in a regular game. The work of the backfield still is far from good because of the shifts, but the line shows an improvement.

Strutz, moved to quarter for the first time this year, played a good ball-carrying game but his selection of plays still is only fair, which might be expected, but this will improve with experience. Popp has proved to be a good plunger, but he still fails to block his man as he should to help his backfield mates get started. He also hits the line with his head straight up, instead of waiting for the passing of the enemy scrimmage line to raise that member. His stiff arm work also is only fair, Johnston, Roemer and Bob Kunitz looked good at their jobs.

The line looks better than a few days ago with Kruse back in a suit. Kruse and Captain Getshow show better than the average at tackles and Hartung cares for his end in class style. Should Schafer be ready to go Saturday the two tackle and end berths will be as strong as any in this part of the state. Dressing, Refots and Breitrick are the likely wing-men opposite Hartung, should Schafer be out and none of the three play better than an average game.

Rankin will be at center but he still needs plenty of work controlling his passes. Often his "shots" pass over the head of a rearward mate or far out of their reach. Two green men will hold down the guards, though several players will get chances before the tilt is over. At present the best pair looks to be Kranhold, 126 reserve, and Elias, a scrapping linemen who has fought his way up from a third-team berth by hard tackling and great fight. Others who will get chances at the job include Redlin, who has been bothering the first team backs from a second squad line berth all week, De Young, Reetz and others.

Schafer worked out in a suit Tuesday and Wednesday and he may be ready to go for part time Saturday if needed badly. The line now averages 165 pounds and the rear wall 153 in spite of the fact that two of its members are under 140. Johnston and Popp make up for the lack in beef in Reetz and Strutz, 135-pound quarterback.

YANKS STILL NEED GAME FOR NEW MARK

Tigers Beat Hugginsmen to Stop 105th Win; Bucs Increase N. L. Lead

The Yankees Thursday still needed one game to tie the American League record for games won during a baseball season. They hoped to win their 105th victory Wednesday against Detroit and equal the 1912 mark of the Boston Red Sox, but instead they showed how badly a championship club can play.

RUTH GETS 55

Babe Ruth knocked the ball into the right centerfield bleachers. The Tigers won 6-1.

New York has seven games left to play and Ruth needs four more home runs to equal his 1921 record.

Horace Dierbeck held the St. Louis Browns to five hits and shut them out, 10-0.

A double by Red Rollings in the last of the ninth gave the Boston Red Sox a 3 to 2 win over Chicago.

Cleveland took the opening game of the series from Philadelphia, 6 to 5. Pittsburgh defeated Brooklyn in the only game played in the National League, 4 to 2.

NEW CARD GRIDMEN SHOW REAL ABILITY

Cuisinier, Rebholz Are Worked With Veterans in Backfield

Madison—After a strenuous week of double practice sessions, Wisconsin's grid squad settled down to the two hour per day drill yesterday with the opening of University classes. Although a great deal was accomplished by the Badger coaches during these busy days, Glenn Thistlethwaite must make the best of his time in order to run a smooth combination on the field a week from Saturday for the opener with Cornell.

Several of the new men have sufficiently impressed Thistlethwaite as to be assured of seeing action on the Varsity. "Bo" Cuisinier and Harold Rebholz, recruit half and full back respectively, have been running signals regularly with Capt. Crofoot and Rose, in what might be termed a first string backfield.

"Lew" Smith, fullback, Pat McHardy, Harry Kyr and "Babe" Weigant, a trio of new halves and Hayes of Mooseheart, a quarter, all look to have ability and will at least have a chance to exhibit their wares under fire. Art Mansfield, who played some in the backfield last fall, has been shifted to end and Coach Allison is working on him to develop a charge, which has been heretofore lacking.

"Bob" Sykes, letter man of several seasons back, John Parks, Bill Ketchum and Herman McKaskle, of last year's fresh squad and Gottstein, Binish and Horwitz, reserves in 1926, have all attracted the favor of line-coach Tom Lieb.

MORE MEN REPORT FOR BLUE PRACTICE

11 New Gridders Out Wednesday for 35 Total; Vet Lineman Included

Lawrence college football hopes were given a slight boost Wednesday when 11 men, who had not yet donned uniforms this season, reported at Whiting athletic field for practice, bringing the squad total to about 35 players and giving Coach Mark S. Catlin a little more material to mould a team from.

Included in the players were Les Johnson, Racine, reserve center and guard of last year, whose injured knee had kept him from being a regular for the last two years.

The Racine giant still is bothered by the trick knee but he was tried at a tackle and guard in the first team line during practice. Capt. Francis Bloomer, who is ineligible, also was in a suit and he ran the second squad in its workout against the temporary varsity.

Coach Catlin used his varsity backs behind his second team line and against the first string line to give the backs tough practice as well as to give the first string linemen a little to think about. The work also better acquainted every man on the squad with the first team plays and signals.

RUTH, PENNOCK YANK THREATS IN SERIES

BY BILLY EVANS

If Babe Ruth is hitting and Herb Pennock star southpaw, is at his best, the Yankees are sure to prove mighty troublesome for their National League rivals in the world series.

As Ruth goes, so go the Yankees, is pretty fair dope on the chances of the New York Americans. When the Babe is swatting 'em, the rest of the club is inspired to greater deeds at the bat.

Liko all great sluggers, Ruth has his erratic moments. Perhaps a half dozen times during the season, he has a batting slump of from three days to a week, in which he looks bad. If he should hit one of those spots during the series, the Yankees would be under a terrific handicap.

When Ruth is at the top of his game, the Yanks are tough, but with the Babe off his stride there seems to be a perceptible let down on the part of the rest of the team. His slump is usually contagious.

Ruth is poison when hitting 'em. The St. Louis pitchers will subscribe to that statement, even though the Cards beat the Yanks. In one series game last year he hit three home runs.

However, to my way of thinking, in a short series of seven games, pitching is as dominant a factor, if not more so, than hitting. Therefore the condition of Herb Pennock's left arm is just as important as Babe Ruth's home run bat.

Pennock hasn't been at his best this year, despite the fact that, as I look at the records, he shows the very fat

OHIO YOUTHS MAY AID BADGER SQUAD

Three Buckeyes Show Promise as Six Card Teams Get Signal Drill

Chicago (P)—Six teams of Wisconsin football men went through signal drill at Madison Wednesday while heavy scrimmages were held at Northwestern, Chicago, Purdue, Ohio State and Indiana camps of the Western Conference.

Three Ohio youths appear destined to play leading roles in the University of Wisconsin season. Mansfield, a back last year has been switched to end by Coach Thistlethwaite and has been showing good form. Kyr, a Cleveland lad, looks like excellent halfback material and Warren also a Buckeye, has done well at end. Another hopeful appeared Thursday when Larry Shoemaker, Herrin Ill. tackle reported. Shoemaker is six feet tall and scales 200 pounds.

The first eleven appeared almost the average of .682 as a winner, with 15 victories and only seven defeats.

While his debut as a series pitcher dates back to 1914, when he worked a few innings to relieve Bob Shawkey in the fourth straight defeat the Braves handed the Athletics, he really didn't come into his own until 1923.

After the Giants had beaten the Yanks in 1921 and 1922, it was Herb Pennock, more than any other pitcher, who put an end to the reign of McGraw's club. He won two victories in 1923 and saved another game by his great relief work.

Last fall against the St. Louis Cardinals, Pennock got another chance to show his stuff. He responded with two victories, turning in a couple of pitching classics, winning 3-2 and 2-1.

It looks as if Pennock would be tipping his southpaw slants against the Pittsburgh Pirates, now given the best chance to win the 1927 National League pennant.

Since the Pirate batsmen are said to be very fond of a southpaw diet of pitching, Pennock may have his troubles keeping defeat away. He has yet to be beaten in a world series.

GRIM COMEN HACK

Dr. Jack Wilce, Ohio State coach, sent his men through their first scrimmage of the season. The return of Fred Grim, threatened with an operation for appendicitis, was predicted for next Monday.

Coach Stagg spent most of his time with the backs although handicapped by increasing numbers of injuries.

The Illini continued their signal and punting drill under Coach Zuppke who is working for perfect physical condition in fear of early season injuries.

Michigan placed tackling and defense against open plays while three Indiana squads scrimmaged the freshmen.

OVER-EQUIPMENT OF DAIRY FARMER DETRACTS FROM PROFITS

OVERHEAD COSTS EAT INTO INCOME, ENGINEER STATES

"Traditional" Requirements Cause Farmer to Build Larger Barns Than Needed

Madison—(P)—Adherence to traditional models of dairy barn equipment accounts for a great part of the overhead expense which Wisconsin's dairy farmers must meet, says John Swenhardt, agricultural engineer at the college of agriculture of the University. To pay for this overhead, 10 cents must be taken out of every 45 cents received in payment for a pound of butter. Under overhead he classes interest on the farmer's investment, depreciation, taxes, and insurance. In other words, then, the farmers work nearly three months out of the year to pay for these four items of overhead.

Mr. Swenhardt believes that there is too much waste space in the average barn. "I have visited barn after barn," he says, "and cannot find one that has its superstructure occupied for more than 10 per cent of the time. We have too much barn for the number of cows. We equip, not too well, but too much."

KEEP OLD MODELS
If an industrial plant found itself over-equipped, it would speedily cut down; not so much with the farmer, says Swenhardt. Tradition holds him to build bigger barns than he needs. "We are using a dairy barn that was considered good enough 25 to 40 years ago. Our model dairy barn is the model of traditions that have developed in the early growth of the dairy industry. We are governed by tradition."

"It costs roughly $250 to house a cow. If we allow 12 per cent for the four items of interest, taxes, insurance, and depreciation, we may say that $30 must be taken out of the cow's annual income to pay for the overhead. I maintain that agriculture needs to look into that fact."

50 MILLION FOR OVERHEAD
Wisconsin's dairy industry produces approximately two hundred million dollars worth of milk products annually, plus twenty-five million dollars worth of calves and by-products of the industry, making a total of two hundred twenty-five million dollars. Of this, sixty million dollars must be paid out for overhead on buildings and equipment, which amounts to 12 cents out of every 45 cents received for a pound of butter."

The solution to the high-production cost in the dairy industry is two-fold, thinks Mr. Swenhardt; "one solution" he says, "is to raise the production figure by eliminating producers, cutting down the number engaged in the industry, and leaving the best ones. The second solution is by a study of design of farm buildings and building equipment that will give us the same efficiency at less cost."

BIG GAIN SHOWN IN ELECTRIFIED FARMS

27 States Jump from 122,000 "Power" Farms in 1924 to 350,000 in 1927

Lafayette, Ind.—Nearly 350,000 farms in 27 states are now using electric service.

This estimate is made by the rural service committee of the National Electric Light association based on surveys and campaigns conducted throughout the country.

In 1924, the same 27 states showed only 122,000 farms with electricity. By the first of this year this number had increased to 228,000.

The latest feature undertaken to enhance electrification of farms is that advanced by the state experiment station of Purdue University, here. The school carried and demonstrated such electrical equipment as milking machines, cream separator, poultry house lighting system, incubator, water supply system and old job motors for use in turning grindstones, running churns, fanning mills, washing machines and even wood saws.

In addition, the demonstrators took along a model electric kitchen showing all modern household labor saving appliances.

A circular broadcast in the 27 states informs farmers that 10 cents spent for electricity will perform any one of the following tasks:

Cook for two persons for one day.
Do the farm family washing for one week.
Operate the milking machine 1 hour and 20 minutes.
Separate 1,500 pounds of milk.
Heat a 150-egg incubator for two days.
Pump 500 gallons of water.
Saw one and two-thirds cords of wood.

Badger School Provides Good Community Center

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

The Badger school on Spencer-st., beyond the limits of Appleton, is one of the model school buildings of Outagamie-co. The building is in constant use as a community center during the school term, as well as for educational purposes. A splendid spirit of cooperation prevails that makes a marked success of most undertakings. The members of the school board are E. O. Mueller, Mrs. F. Siegert and A. O. Tillman. The teacher is Miss Florence M. Keating whom the board has employed continuously the past six years. There are now 34 pupils enrolled in the Badger school. The organizations that have charge of the community programs are the Parent-Teacher association, Mothers' Improvement club and the Literary Society.

The building is of stucco construction, attractively located near the center of a shady, well kept tract of one acre, which is provided with an elaborate playground equipment, a 40-foot flag pole, and cement walks. On the main floor of the building are three cloak rooms and a large school room, a library and hall. In the basement are a kitchen, play room, coal and furnace rooms, store room, fresh air rooms and toilets.

Device Promises More And Cheaper Tobacco

Chicago—More and cheaper cigarettes, in spite of the fact that annual production of this "pony" size smoke may pass the hundred billion mark before the end of the year, are assured by new developments in machinery for transplanting tobacco by check row, according to the research department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers.

The man labor cost of tobacco production has heretofore been a serious obstacle to "mass production" in tobacco farming areas, according to Prof. C. E. Seitz of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and member of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

An acre of burley tobacco yielding from 800 to 1000 pounds requires, for growing, preparing for market and marketing, from 350 to 400 hours of labor. An acre of bright tobacco, the principal cigarette type as grown in south-central Virginia and yielding 600 to 700 pounds, requires about 400 to 500 hours of labor.

The elimination of hand work in both transplanting the cultivation materially cuts the cost and increases the acreage handled by each farmer. The first successful check row transplanting of tobacco was done in Lancaster county, Pa., last spring, when the new machine was given an official test.

HERE AND THERE AMONG THE FARMERS—
BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer
Court brothers, route 1, Seymour, have raised 18 acres of good corn this season of the Wisconsin No. 12 variety. They are filling two silos, with three teams and five men, and expect to use nine acres of the crop for that purpose. The corn is dented, the ears are well filled, while that left standing will soon be fully matured. The part of the corn crop not needed in the silos will be cut, shocked and hauled. A large part of the best ears will be saved and cured under cover for seed. The Court brothers report a good yield of hay, small grain and all other crops this season.

C. Thomas, route 1, Seymour, with several teams and a large crew, was busy filling his silo on Tuesday.

Emil Mueller, route 1, is filling two large silos on his farm. He has 25 acres of corn. The crop is not as heavy this year as his average. Mr. Mueller and the men who are helping him have 11 silos to fill before they finish. The crew is made up of the owners of these silos who are "changing work." As soon as the silo of one member of the organization is filled, the crew moves to the farm of the next member and the list goes on until all the silos of the crew are filled. In this manner, most of the silos in this and other counties will be filled. In some cases, however, a farmer prefers to fill his own silo with his own help or to employ a custom silo fillers to do the job.

Herman Gagnon, route 1, Seymour, will soon complete the building of a tool shed on his farm, 30 by 55 feet. He is doing the mason and carpenter work himself with the help of his family, at odd spells. His crops are satisfactory this season. He threshed 600 bushels of small grain.

At the Clover Blossom Cheese factory, route 1, Seymour, the milk delivery fell from 14,000 pounds daily to 7,000 pounds as a result of the recent drying of the pastures. The pastures are picking up rapidly since the rains, but it will require some time for a response to be made by the cows in an increased milk flow. In August, the owner and operator, Otto Erasm, paid his patrons 60-56 cents a pound for butter fat which is the equivalent of $2.41 a pound for 4 per cent milk.

A large number of farmers in this vicinity, as a result of their experience with frosted corn and muddy fields last fall and suspicion of the weather, are actively engaged with large crews in filling their silos. Others have their silo filling equipment set up and are ready for business in case the weather man neglects his duty. The reason for delay in silo filling in any quarter, is that corn growers desire to give their corn crop all the time possible for maturing.

Tuesday night for the first time this season, flowers and vegetables in the gardens in this locality and especially in the city were covered with blankets of all sorts and colors to protect the plants from the predicted frost.

Cabbage growers in the vicinity of Hortonville are getting about 14 tons of early cabbage to the acre and are delivering their crops to the Fox Valley Canning company. They will finish cutting the early crop in about a week and start in the late fields immediately thereafter. The canning company is getting all the early cabbage needed at home and the price paid growers is $7 a ton.

Waite brothers, route 2, Hortonville, finished filling their silo, 10 by 36 feet, on Saturday, to a level of 28 feet. They used five teams, eight men, and four acres of corn and finished the job in one day. The corn was glazed and dented and a very good crop but not equal to their crop of last year. Another field of ten acres the brothers intend to cut, shock and husk. On Monday, they were cutting a large field of red clover for seed.

Taking into consideration the big hay crop, the grain, corn, cabbage and potato crops, dairying products and the prices of these, G. A. Cuff, route 2, Hortonville, says that the present year is the best one that farmers have had in the past ten years. A short time ago Mr. Cuff returned from a trip that took him into Indiana. He sized up crops in the counties and states through which he passed and compared them with the crops of Wisconsin and came to the conclusion that Wisconsin crops are better than the best he saw after crossing the borders. Mr. Cuff is now putting an excellent crop of corn into his silo and has ten acres of late potatoes that promise a big yield.

O. P. Cuff, route 2, Hortonville, recently finished the building of a tool shed 32 by 66 feet. Mr. Cuff has an excellent field of corn that partially recovered after being badly damaged by a hail storm early in the season.

INDIANS BECOMING GOOD FARMERS, SAYS WISCONSIN EXPERT

Interest in Farming Growing—Red Men Accustomed to Modern Methods

Madison—(P)—If the paleface approaches the Indian correctly he may aid the latter greatly to become a practical farmer, says J. F. Wojta, county agent leader of the agricultural extension service, Wisconsin college of agriculture.

Mr. Wojta, who has lectured Indians at their fairs, pow-wows and institutes, through an interpreter, believes that interest in farming is growing among them and that teaching of methods that will produce rapid results after properly approaching the Indian will further his interest.

The Menominee tribe, in September, 1914, was the first Indian group to solicit help from the Agricultural Extension service. Two or three years later, every Indian agency in the state had sent in a request for educational work in practical agriculture.

NEED FARM AGENT
"It is obvious," Mr. Wojta declares, "that the best results in the advancement of the agricultural program can be attained by the employment of a full time Indian agricultural agent, whose duties would correspond to those of the county agent for the white man. Such agricultural agent should be an observer, with ability to analyze conditions and find solution to the problems that may confront him."

The work of helping the Indian convert himself from hunter and rover to a farmer and settler can be accomplished only by following an understanding of how the Indian mind works. Mr. Wojta says. His sole occupation of hunting and fishing in the past have given him excitement, pride, action, satisfaction, definite and quick results. "If he is to become a farmer and like it enough to continue that calling, he must derive from it the interest and benefits that hunting and fishing gave him," he says.

"The Indian loves pony races, pow-wow dances, baseball, target and trap pigeon shooting, hunting, fishing, and playing his favorite Indian game, la crose. When selling the game he secures through hunting and fishing, he is in the habit of getting immediate results and returns. The concrete rather than the abstract appeals to him. The message that the white man is to bring to the Indian should therefore relate as nearly as is consistent with the parallel development in the Indian's life. He does not relish restrictions placed upon him, but likes to receive sympathy."

GIVE SCIENTIFIC INSTRUCTION
At the various institutes which have been conducted, the Indians have been told of such things as how to treat potatoes for scab, how to cure the tubers for seed; how to prepare the field and plant the seed; how to select strawberry plants, prepare the beds, and plant the "sets." Other topics discussed included home gardens, the growing of sweet corn, beets, rutabagas, cucumbers, carrots, beans, onions, poultry and dairy cow management, the construction and value of root cellars and pits.

The Indian language contains words and scientific terms which must be used in teaching modern practical methods in farming; so the interpreter is an important medium in conveying the new learning.

That the Indian appreciates what the white men are doing is apparent from the fact that from 75 to 400 attended the recent institutes daily. Usually, at the close, several of the leading Indians voiced appreciation for the advice, information, and suggestions which had been given by the speakers.

Woman So Nervous Can't Digest Food

"I was bothered with gas so bad that I thought I would choke. Food wouldn't digest but stayed in big lumps. I was so nervous. Nothing helped till I heard of Adlerika. It has done wonders for me."—Mrs. T. A. Derosia.

Because Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, it gives the system a REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause your gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowel, Adlerika will surely cure you. Vol's Drug Store and Schlicht's Bros. Co. adv.

RIVER PROJECTS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

Retaining Wall at Kaukauna Will Be Finished in Half of Allotted Time

Work under the supervision of the United States engineer's office here, which includes the retaining wall project at Kaukauna, dredging of the Fox river as far as Portage and the lock construction at Portage, is progressing rapidly, according to A. F. Everett, who is in charge of the local office.

Second time is being made in the construction of the retaining wall at Kaukauna, Mr. Everett said, and it is now believed that the project will be finished about Oct. 1. Nine months was originally allotted for the work, which began June 1, and if the wall is finished by the first of the month it will mean that the projects will have been completed in about half the regular time.

Dredging of the Fox River to regulation six foot depth has been completed as far as the White River lock. The dredge Winneconne, which is doing the work, started near Berlin and has been making satisfactory progress with the project.

Pouring of concrete for the Portage lock between the Fox river and the Wisconsin river is progressing rapidly and indications are the lock will be completed and open for navigation next spring.

Reports coming to the engineer's office are to the effect that many fish are dying in the waters below the Rapid Croucho dam but because the water is low in Lake Winnebago the river cannot be flushed to relieve the trouble. Several weeks ago, following a heavy rain, the gates on the Menasha dam were opened for 24 hours but that is not possible at the present time.

BEWARE OF HIKERS, MOTORISTS WARNED BY CHIEF OF POLICE

A warning to motorists not to pick up "hikers" along the road again has been issued by George T. Prim, chief of police. The chief points at an occurrence in Colorado recently in which Emmet Heimer of Denver, on his way to Greeley, picked up two young men who later held him up, stole his car, robbed him and left him tied to a tree at the roadside. The police here have been asked to be on the lookout for the thieves and they received descriptions of the men and car.

"This type of thing would not be committed if motorists would not stop to pick up young men who are hiking along the highways seeking rides," the chief declared.

FORBID SENDING OF FIREARMS IN MAIL

Postoffice Department Warns That Regulations Are Very Strict

Warning that strict compliance must be made with the rules regarding the sending of firearms in the mails has been received by Appleton postoffice. Tendency of persons to conceal firearms in packages has prompted the post office department solicitor to warn employees of the department regarding the regulations.

Pistols, revolvers and other fire arms capable of being concealed on a person are non-mailable, according to the postal regulations, and shall not be carried or delivered by any postal department employee except when shipped under the rules of the department.

Unloaded firearms may be carried in the government mails if they are for men in the army, navy, marine corps, reserves of these branches of the service, government officers such as United States marshals or others whose work it is to serve federal warrants, and to bona fide dealers or manufacturers.

Wheeler's Successor May Be "Forced" Into Office

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of five articles on the question of the hour in America: "Who Will Succeed Wheeler?" Tomorrow: Wheeler's Methods.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The man who succeeds Wayne B. Wheeler as legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League must have these qualifications:

- 1—A cool head.
- 2—The gift of humor.
- 3—Adequate political experience.
- 4—Organizing ability.
- 5—Fidelity on the platform.

This list was suggested by an officer of the league, who pointed out that these were the attributes which made Wheeler the great man he was.

"It's a whole of a job to control Congress," this official said.

It's such a whole of a job that no one in the league is trying hard to get it. You may have seen stories to the effect that there was a "rush of reformers" after the big job, but that doesn't appear to be true. The man who succeeds Wheeler will have to be drafted.

MANY "POSSIBILITIES"

There are a number of possibilities, but each one knows that he will have to be compared with Wheeler as soon as he assumes office. Some of them don't want the job and would refuse it if it were offered to them. An indication of the situation the league faces was given in its prompt decision to split up the jobs of legislative superintendent and general counsel, both of which Wheeler held for six or seven years.

Edward Bradford Dunford, Wheeler's legal assistant, will take the latter and least important job. Wheeler often said that Dunford had "the makings of a great man."

unfacturers. In the case of manufacturers unloaded firearms may be sent for repair, but on return must be addressed to bona fide dealers.

All firearms must be labeled as such and according to regulations while the position, or business of the addressee must be marked on the package.

keenest legal mind the world ever knew."

The new legislative superintendent will be selected in December.

Incidentally, the league official quoted at the outset of this story said that the cool head and the gift of humor were the most important essentials of all.

AN INTENSE FIGURE

Wheeler was an intense little figure, whose favorite gesture was an out-thrust fist, but he knew that while some legislators could only be coerced by strong-arm methods others could be won only by sugar. His own brand of humor was always on tap and often he more than held his own against a heckling audience by virtue of it.

But in the debate with Clarence Darrow at New York early this year he couldn't put himself over. Little groups in the audience chanted in unison, "We Want Beer!" over and over again, breaking up his speech. It was the first time, according to his friends, that the Wheeler platform power had not prevailed against a hostile crowd. He was, however, a sick man.

They had known within the league for more than a year that Wheeler was doomed. League folk admit that they lied about his health. Several times in the last 18 months he was near death, but he was created with great vitality. Then came the terrible tragedy in which Wheeler's wife was burned to death.

"We knew it wouldn't be long then," says one who was closest to Wheeler. "She had given up her many outside interests to give him constant care and she had prolonged his life. If she had been there to save him exertion, Mr. Wheeler would not now be dead. If she had lived, he would have survived the year, but we doubt if he could have lasted longer in any event."

A nightmare caused by witnessing a startling film, gave a man in Sussex, England such a shock that he recovered his voice, lost when he was gassed in the war more than ten years ago.

PROFESSOR SPEAKS ON ABUSE OF DRUGS

Divides People in Three Classes, According to Belief in Efficacy of Drugs

Eau Claire—(AP)—Dr. A. S. Loevenhart, professor of pharmacology at the University of Wisconsin, spoke Wednesday night on the Use and Abuse of Drugs before the meeting of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin.

Dr. Loevenhart said that people may be classified into three groups according to their belief in the efficacy of drugs: those who believe that drugs are of no service at all; the patent medicine interests who could have no belief that medicines can cure all illnesses; and physicians who study the action of drugs, and use them rationally.

If the first group is to be consistent, said Dr. Loevenhart, they should deny the value of general and local anesthetics, of morphine, and of purgatives.

The second class, the patent medicine interests, he said, claim that drugs cure almost cure glass eyes or wooden legs. Their position is as bad as that of those who deny all value of drugs, because their claims are totally incapable of standing any rigid test.

"The two great aims of medicine," concluded Dr. Loevenhart, "are to prevent disease, and to cure people who have become ill. In connection with the latter effort, we must develop new remedies, and it is one of the great purposes of medicine in this connection to secure positive proof of the efficacy of certain drugs and to take out of the column of remedies those substances whose efficacy is a matter of opinion, and place them in the column of remedies of proved value."

COMPLETE CURBINGS ON JACKMAN-ST JOB

Workmen have finished work on curbing on Jackman-st and are to start immediately on laying of concrete. It is believed that if the weather continues favorable that laying of concrete will be finished in about three days, after which it must set for a week before the bricks can be placed. It probably will be about three weeks before all the work on the street is finished.

NEAR THE BLAZING STAR FERRY THEY BEGAT A GREAT INDUSTRY

WAY over in England in the early Sixties a bright young man had invented a new type of floor covering. Frederick Walton was his name. "Linoleum", he had christened his brain-child. And in England it was selling very well indeed.

Then—in 1872—it stirred the interest of a New York business man. He was Joseph Wild. To England he dispatched a business associate, to interview Walton personally.

As a result of that visit Frederick Walton came to America to supervise the erection and equipment of a plant Over on Staten Island, hard by the Blazing Star Ferry (now the Carteret Ferry) they found an ideal site. Here they founded the town of Linoleumville. Here they began to manufacture the first linoleum made in America—Wild's Linoleum.

Since 1873 the linoleum industry has grown so great that today over 210,000,000 square yards are sold yearly. Yet Linoleumville has remained the shrine of the Linoleum industry in America. In the factories where Wild's Linoleum is made, practically every great advance in linoleum manufacture was originated. Here Straight Line Inlaid Linoleum was invented. Here Battleship Linoleum was created. Here was conceived the first Parquet Inlaid Linoleum showing the true wood graining.

As a result Wild's has remained for 54 years America's pre-eminent linoleum. "Wild's for Wear" is a slogan coined by dealers to suggest Wild's quality. "Wild's for Beauty" is a slogan which users have adopted from experience. "As good as Wild's," an apologetic phrase sometimes heard, emphasizes the recognition of Wild's as the standard.

Recently a great variety of new Wild patterns have been introduced.
